More About Gilgamesh
Japan Has Troubles
Potatoes and Prohibition
Pope Pius Warns

—By Arthur Brisbane—

THE FIELD Museum-Oxford University expedition in Mesopotamia find a tablet 4000 years old, supplying 50 missing lines in the epic of Gilgamesh, who was to the literature of ancient Babylon what Ulysses was to Greece.

Some of his adventures suggest writings in the Old Testament, especially his escape from a great flood, like the one that threatened Noah.

Among Northern peoples, the adventures of Beowulf suggest the career of Gilgamesh, but Beowulf's wildest achievements, including his swim of six days and nights in the ocean dressed in full armor, and his fights with marine animals, seem tame compared with the Gilgamesh career.

Primitive men were children, and all delighted in fairy stories, even when writing history.

Tokio reports a new cabinet planned to suit the Japanese army, following the murder of the 77-year-old Japanese prime minister by young army officers.

The civil authorities of Japan dwindle in importance to infra-microscopic size when war begins, and must defer to army officers that deal directly with the Mikado. The army feels that Japan is in his hands, and no civilian must interfere.

On the other hand, Japanese bonds and the yen drop, exchange markets of the world taking a cold view of patriotism in Japan. They know that Japan's army will fight magnificently, but know also that it would not be able to finance magnificently. If the army decides what is to be done and spent, the civilian government may find it difficult to pay the bills.

The money problems of Japan's civilian government may be complicated by news that Russia has called up four army classes, totaling 800,000 more men, for immediate maneuvers.

A German expert warned the Kaiser that attacking Russia was like fighting a feather bed, "the farther in you go, the more you smother." Japan may find a feather bed in China.

Manchuria reports that 35 Japanese prisoners have been massacred in the town of Ilan and the town burned. The Chinese that killed the Japanese retreated after the massacre. Japan doubtless will avenge their deaths with many killings, but you cannot kill 400,000,000 Chinese.

Mrs. Vincent Astor, intelligent and prosperous young New Yorker, collected funds for a wet campaign yesterday at the corner of Nassau and Wall sts. Mrs. John N. Sheppard and Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, also prosperous ladies, joined many others described as "society women" in a fight for beer, and against prohibition.

Prohibitionists will not underestimate the importance of this "society" attack. When Parmentier brought potatoes to France, working people would have nothing to do with them. The king ordered his nobles to wear potato blossoms in their buttonholes, and the little people said: "Potatoes must be good, since the nobles wear their blossoms." They have been eating potatoes ever since, cooked in 100 ways.

In an encyclical of solemn warning headed Charitas Cristi, "Christ's Charity," Pope Pius XI urges an eight-day period of prayer and self denial. The faithful are to abstain "at least from entertainment and amusement, however lawful," the prosperous giving to the poor what is thus saved.

The Pope denounces Communism, atheism, Socialism, exaggerated nationalism, and at the same time denounces accumulation of wealth in the hands of a few individuals. With that paragraph in the encyclical ultra radicals will agree.

The Pope sees in modern times "the satanical banners of war against God and against religion brazenly unfurled to the wind."

Congressman Cochran's bill punishing kidnaping with death or life imprisonment is approved by the House judiciary sub-committee.

The difficulty unfortunately, is not lack of severe penalties, but incapacity in dealing with crime and convicting and punishing murderers and other criminals.

New York city's building strike, costing workers close to half a million dollars a day, is not quite settled. The men resist, naturally, an arrangement that reduces those earning $15.40 a day to $12 a day, and those receiving $13.20 a day to $10 a day. That is real depression for skilled mechanics.

On the other hand that amount of actual cash for eight hours' work would seem the height of prosperity to many of the country's twenty million farmers.

2 Accused of Trading Work And Splitting City Aid

Some days Eriola would work and other days Francisco would work—and together they split $13 a week of city aid.

Eriola is Eriola Grieco, 33, father of tw ochildren. Francisco is Francisco Celone, 34, father of four. They lived in the same house in Maverick st., East Boston.

The sharp eye of Capt. Albert L. Edson at the airport noted that Eriola didn't look like Francisco some days and Francisco didn't look like Eriola other days. Grieco had been assigned to work out the aid at the airport.

So——

Grieco pleaded guilty to larceny and not guilty to conspiracy today in East Boston court. Celone pleaded not gullt yto both.

Judge Brown wiaved jurisdiction and held both for the grand jury.

PAINE'S PRINTS BIGGEST AD

In today's Boston Evening American Paine Furniture Co. is publishing its largest single advertisement ever to appear in print.

Twenty-four columns of space are used by this 97-year-old New England institution in establishing a publicity record for this time-honored house.

This large advertising space is an evidence of the company's faith in the buying power of Boston people and in the increasing stability in the Boston and New England markets.

Paine Furniture Co. selected the Boston Evening American as one of the newspapers to carry this great sales message to the people of Boston and New England because it reaches a far greater number of newspaper readers than any other New England afternoon paper.

Paine Furniture Co. believes that the best way to promote sales now is to have desirable merchandise at reasonable prices and liberal advertising, its officials declare.

3 Chinese Admit Selling Narcotics

Mrs. Chin Poy, Ung Sam and Chin Gin, three of four Chinese charged with selling narcotics, pleaded guilty shortly before their trial was to have begun in Federal Court today.

The fourth, Chin Poy, went to trial and his broken English explanation of his defense was so incoherent that Judge James M. Morton, Jr., called for an interpreter. Disposition of those who pleaded guilty will not be made until Poy's trial is finished.

Aged Woman Found in Street, Burned

Mysteriously burned on the face and body, Mary Leary, 73, of Northampton st., Roxbury, was found today lying on the sidewalk in Northampton st., near Fellows, a short distance from her home. James Moran, of Hamden st., drove her to City Hospital. Her condition was so serious she was not questioned as to what had happened.

The Problem

JOHN H. FAHEY, ex-president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, says he is informed there are 1,500,000 fewer men employed on public works than there were a year ago today.

The Remedy

COURT WON'T LET JURORS 'TELL ELY'

Bank Probers Seek Right to Report to Governor "About Certain State Offices"

The Suffolk County Grand Jury, throwing a bombshell into the judicial procedure in Massachusetts, asked today in superior court if it had the right to report directly to the Governor rather than to the court.

The request came unexpectedly during investigation into affairs of the Industrial Bank & Trust Company, which had been resumed yesterday.

Judge Louis S. Cox ruled that the jury may not report direct to the Governor, but must either return no bills or report indictments against individuals concerned.

Judge Cox made his ruling soon after the jury, of which Edward T. Howes is foreman, filed in and the questions were read.

Beyond the investigation into affairs of the bank, the questions asked by the grand jury indicated that the bank probe has gone into conduct of office by State officials.

HIT STATE OFFICERS

Foreman Howes asked if it would be proper to submit to Judge Cox two unusual questions, and Judge Cox replied that questions could be asked any time by the jurors.

Then Foreman Howes handed to

SEA GIVES UP HULL DORY VICTIMS

Other Pictures on Page 10

Victims of a drowning accident, the bodies of Mrs. Lillian Loud and Louis Phillips, both of Rockland, were recovered by coast guardsmen off Waveland, Nantasket, today.

The hat of a third victim, Fred Gammons, 39, of Webster st., Rockland, was also found, and grappling for his body was continued.

FIND DORY ON BOTTOM

The dory, mute evidence of the tragedy, had previously been located by coast guardsmen, sunk off Sagamore Ledge, 1½ miles from shore.

Phillips, who was 42, lived in Union st. Mrs. Loud was the wife of Louis Loud of Gardner st.

The accident is believed to have occurred about midnight as the trio attempted to reach shore after a fishing trip. At that time Public Safety Commissioner Henry J. Stevens of Hull sent officers to the Strawberry Hill section, off which the bodies were found, after receiving a call from Daniel Quint, watchman at the Nantasket Coal & Fuel Co.

HEARD SCREAMING

Quint reported he heard a woman screaming and men shouting and thought murder was being committed. Officers Walter Smith, Thomas Kelly and James Melvin searched the district without avail.

The wind was blowing inshore at the time and it is thought the cries were those of the victims as the dory capsized.

The trio was last seen by coast guardsmen two miles off Gun Rock late yesterday afternoon. After dislodging a stranded boat the coast guardsmen were unable to see the dory, and began a search for it which lasted all night, under acting Capt. Thomas O'Neil.

1 KILLED, 3 HURT IN AUTO CRASH

A Hyde Park man was instantly killed and another man and two women seriously injured when the auto in which they were riding skidded, struck a pole and overturned in Ballard st., Walpole, early today.

Jeremiah Mahoney, 31, of Fairmont ave., who, police say, was driving the car, was killed. Thomas Connell, 31, of Hyde Park ave., was badly injured about the head.

Miss Catherine Lyons, 2[illegible] of Whitten st., Dorchester, suffered internal injuries, concussion of the brain and a possible fracture of the skull, while Miss Mary Twohey, 29, of Archdale rd., Roslindale, sustained a possible fracture of the right leg and numerous cuts and bruises. All the injured are at City Hospital.

Boy Speeder Sent to Reformatory

Richard J. Orpin, 17, Charlestown boy speeder, was sentenced to Concord Reformatory today for use without authority of a $3600 automobile that he raced through Charlestown Sunday night and crashed into a pole.

WAITS ALL NIGHT ON BEACH

Miss Clara Blake, of Rockland, sweetheart of Louis Phillips, one of two Rockland men and a woman lost in a dory while fishing off Hull. Miss Blake is shown standing on Gun Rock Beach, where she had kept an all-night vigil after the disappearance of the boat and its occupants became known. Phillip's body and that of Mrs. Lillian Loud were found today and the hat of the third victim, Fred Gammons, was picked up.

Ely Tax Turned Down, But He Plans Fight

The joint legislative committee on taxation today reported against Gov Ely's plan for a state tax on amusements, tobacco and beverages to create welfare funds.

"No legislation necessary," was the report of the committee, which held hearings on the proposal made by the governor in special message. Of the committee 15, there were only two dissenters to this report, Senator James J. Twohig and Representative Timothy J. Cronin.

The Senate chairman of the committee, Erland S. Fish, is reported to have advised against taxing any special industry.

Gov. Ely said:

"I am tremendously disappointed but the fight has just started. A move to substitute the bill for the adverse report will be made on the floor of the House."

He again indicated he had no intention of proroguing the Legislature until it passes tax legislation to aid cities and towns where resources are drained by welfare expenditures. He considered it unlikely he would again ask for a reduction of state employes' salaries.

The Governor said he judged the unfavorable report resulted from a fear the cities and towns would not make good use of the funds from the taxes "but that does not help the man who pays real estate taxes." A tax on dividends is undesirable but might be better than none at all, he said.

Curtis Eats Two Steaks

Trenton, N. J., May 19—John Hughes Curtis' appetite was unaffected by his harrowing day, yesterday. At the Flemington jail last night he ordered "dinner for two," including two large steaks—and ate them both.

On the list of prisoners at the jail he was No. 13.

Curtis appeared refreshed this morning after his night's sleep, according to George Mott Anderson, warden.

Curtis went to sleep early last night and slept until well after daybreak. He had no visitors.

Norfolk, Va., May 19 (AP)—Director of Public Safety Charles B. Borland today said full investigation revealed that John H. Curtis reached New York at 10 o'clock the morning of April 2, the day "Jafsie" paid a futile $50,000 ransom to the supposed Lindbergh kidnapers in a Bronx cemetery.

Trenton, N. J., May 19 (AP)—A conference was called at the State House this afternoon to consider the possibility that Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock of Norfolk committed some crime or misdemeanor in connection with the request of $25,000 "earnest money" from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Rev. Dobson-Peacock has declined to come to New Jersey for questioning.. He has acknowledged he joined in a request Col. Lindbergh deposit $25,000 in a Norfolk bank as evidence of good faith.

New York, May 19 (AP)—Asst. Dist. Atty. Ralph K. Jacobs of Kings County, Brooklyn, announced today he had sent out two detectives to find Mrs. Mary G. Ford, Brooklyn public school teacher, and "bring her in for questioning in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping and ransom payment."

New York, May 19 (INS) — With John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk (Va.) arch-hoaxer, in jail, the actual search for the Lindbergh baby kidnap-murderers met another check today when it was announced that Dr. Condon, "Jafsie" of the $50,000 ransom payment had collapsed

HOAXER CURTIS, MOODY IN HIS CELL, SCORES DEAN

LINDY MAY ASK MERCY FOR TRICKSTER

Norfolk Man Insists Dobson-Peacock Kept Plot Alive to Bask in Publicity

By QUENTIN REYNOLDS
International News Service Correspondent

Trenton, N. J., May 19 (INS)—The grand jury of Hunterdon county is expected to be called by Justice Trenchard today to return an indictment against John Hughes Curtis, who spent the night in the Flemington jail, sent there by the explosion of his bubble of lies that hoaxed Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, the police of the country and the whole civilized world.

Curtis went to jail late yesterday after a hearing before Justice of the Peace Webster, which held court in the library at the Lindbergh home.

Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck asked that Curtis be held in $10,000 bail to answer to the charge of "wilfully furnishing false information to the authorities."

The great public drama came when Curtis left the Lindbergh home—the home of the man he had deceived while his heart was torn—and was taken by State troops to Flemington.

CROWD HOOTS HIM

He sat in the back seat of the official police automobile, his face almost entirely covered with a coat pulled up high around his ears and his hat pulled low over his eyes. Observers saw, however, that his face was pallid and drawn. There were deep lines around his mouth and eyes and he appeared deeply worried.

The car had to plow its way through a crowd of several hundred persons waiting its arrival at the jail. There were murmurs of resentment and hoots from the crowd.

However, he did not testify against Curtis, but several times opened the door connecting his study and the library and looked in while the proceedings were going on.

There was an unverified report that the flier would ask that leniency be granted the man who had tricked him.

HE SCORES DEAN

Just before Curtis was arraigned he made a final statement to Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf of the New Jersey state police, in which he bitterly attacked Dean Dobson-Peacock, one of his colleagues in the "negotiations," as a publicity-seeker, who gave out many statements which were not founded on either the truth or what Curtis had told him to be the truth.

His statement, an amplification of his confession on Monday, told of how he had conceived the idea of appointing himself a mediator between Lindbergh and the kidnapers. He told of enlisting the support of Dean Dobson-Peacock and of their first fruitless efforts to get in touch with Lindbergh or Mrs. Morrow.

Even Dean Peacock's efforts resulted only in a talk with Morris Rosner, who said on the telephone that he was Col. Lindbergh's private secretary.

CALL IN ADMIRAL

It was then that Curtis recalled that Admiral Guy Burrage knew Lindbergh, and he suggested to Dean Dobson-Peacock that the admiral be asked to join them. The dean, according to Curtis, received the suggestion with a decided lack of enthusiasm, saying Burrage would be of no help, as "you know what kind of an old fogy he is."

However, when telephone conversations with the Lindbergh home proved ineffectual and when no reply was received to letters sent to the colonel, the admiral was enlisted as a co-negotiator and eventually convinced Lindbergh that Curtis and the dean had information worth investigating.

At this point Curtis said in his statement he wanted to withdraw from the whole thing, but Dobson-Peacock insisted that the "negotiations" be carried on.

"I desired to drop it all on March 15," Curtis said, "because of my knowledge that the whole thing was untrue but I carried on because I was continually urged and encouraged by Dean Dobson-Peacock, who was enjoying the publicity that he was getting. This also applied to his entire family."

Curtis added that all news he gave to Dean-Dobson-Peacock in confidence was immediately given out by the divine to the press.

Wife of Curtis Is Nearing Collapse

Norfolk, Va., May 19—The 11-year-old daughter of John Hughes Curtis, Constance, was kept from school today by her mother, who is feared on the verge of a breakdown. Mrs. Curtis, along with George Curtis, father of the ship builder still believes in her husband and thinks "everything will come out all right."

Mrs. Dobson-Peacock and Marjorie, her daughter, called on Mrs. Curtis briefly.

FLEISCHER PUT NEAR SCENE OF KIDNAPING

Woman Identifies Gangster as Man She Heard Plotting Before Lindbergh Crime

New York, May 19 (INS)—Harry Fleischer, Detroit gangster, wanted for questioning in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping, has been identified as having registered at a hotel in Englewood, N. J., two days before the baby was stolen, according to a story in the New York Evening Journal today.

The identification was reported as having been made by Mr. and Mrs. George Bartels, members of the Palisades House, a hotel not far from the estate in Englewood of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, grandmother of the kidnaped baby.

Mrs. Clara Bartels said the man she identified as Fleischer had two companions and admitted to her he was "in the liquor racket."

CAME BACK MUDDY

"The man was heavy-set and looked Teutonic. He was neatly dressed in a blue serge suit, gray hat and black oxford shoes. His hair was dark, combed back and wavy."

Mrs. Bartels told how the man returned to the hotel with his shoes and trousers covered with red clay and mud.

"He said he got his clothing dirty working around a brewery," said Mrs. Bartels.

She said the man she identified as Fleischer visited the hotel three times, the last shortly before the kidnaping. She told how the same mysterious guest visited him again bringing a third man, "who looked like an Italian."

"When they came back the third time it was exactly two days before the kidnaping.

"Fleischer sat by the rear window and when his two friends came in their car, they whistled and he went out to meet them."

Believes in Curtis

NORFOLK FEELS CURTIS HASN'T REVEALED ALL

Fellow Citizens Believe Something "Sinister" Lies Behind Shipbuilder's Big Hoax

Norfolk, Va., May 19 (INS)—Residents of Norfolk today simply refused to accept as the whole truth the amazing confession of John Hughes Curtis that his "negotiations" to recover the kidnaped Lindbergh baby were the product of a reeling imagination.

All along, Curtis' two associates here, Rev. Harold Dobson-Peacock, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, and Rear-Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, have felt there was more to the shipbuilder's tale than he told. Today the entire populace is swept with an obvious wave of this belief.

Some believe the erstwhile Norfolk social dictator, who stepped jovially into the role of chief intermediary for the world-famous airman in his search for a stolen son, has hidden something sinister—they don't suggest what—behind his statement the whole wretched affair was a fabrication.

EXPECT MORE TO HAPPEN

Others hold Curtis is acting as directed at the point of a gun by gangmen with whom they believe he was dealing. Still others think the confession, police inquiry and subsequent stir constitute a blind to throw the Lindbergh kidnap-murderers off their guard in order to further the search for the criminals.

Today, more than 48 hours after news of the Curtis confession was released, Norfolk was still seething with excitement and expectancy. There was undeniably a feeling abroad that something else was "bound to happen."

John M. Arnold, commonwealth attorney, initiated an investigation to determine whether Curtis would be prosecuted here. He examined Admiral Burrage and Capt. Frank H. Lackmann, skipper of the yacht Marson, on which Curtis and his associates made their mysterious cruises in search of the phantom kidnapers.

DEAN REFUSES TO GO

Arnold had planned action on one of three counts, attempted extortion, false pretenses and dissemination of false information, but today said he had found nothing here to justify such a course against the shipbuilder.

He will continue his investigation and may question Rev. Dobson-Peacock today, but if any action comes it will be held up pending the outcome of work of the New Jersey police.

The clergyman said he had no objection to submitting to questions but has no intention of traveling to Trenton for that purpose. Rev. Dobson-Peacock received several communications from Col. Schwarzkopf of the New Jersey police requesting his presence in Trenton, but did not reply until today, when he sent the following telegram:

READY AT ANY TIME.

"Replying to your telegrams of yesterday and today requesting my presence in Hopewell I stand ready at such time as you may select to meet at Norfolk you or Governor Moore's accredited representative and will fully and freely give all information in my possession pertaining to the subject."

The rector was plainly chagrined at Curtis' latest expression, which denounced him as a publicity seeker, violator of confidences and manufacturer of news.

Admiral Burrage has played a silent role since Curtis' confession, and does not plan to make any formal statement of his position.

Even though subjecting Dr. John F. Condon, aged Fordham University lecturer, to questioning "from time to time," police said he was the only one of the many figures appearing as negotiators in the case to retain any status.

Curtis Not Part of Kidnaping, Ransom Plot

Superintendent of State Police H. Normna Schwarzkopf announced today at Hopewell that there is "nothing that would in any way link John H. Curtis, of Norfolk, author of the hoax hunt, and the collection of the ransom money."

After the confession investigation was immediately begun as to Curtis' whereabouts on the night of March 1 when the baby was kidnaped and the night of April 2 when the $50,000 ransom was paid by Dr. Condon, Schwarzkopf's statement today came as a result of this investigation.

After exonerating Curtis of implication in the actual kidnaping and collection of the ransom, Schwarzkopf said Dr. Condon had been "most cooperative with police" and had offered to come to Hopewell or go anywhere else with the investigators.

"A message received from his daughter this morning," Schwarzkopf said, "indicates that Dr. Condon's physician has ordered that he rest for several days before his activities are resumed. As soon as Dr. Condon is rested we will continue taking him around."

"Jafsie" Indignant Over Stories of Swindle

Referring to rumors current that he was about to admit a part in the ransom plot, Condon suddenly turned to an interviewer and said:

"Do you—does anyone—think I took a penny of that ransom money? I worked my head off night and day and all I wanted was to be able to restore the child to its mother's arms. All I get is heartless criticism.

"I have told the police my statements. If I make contradictions they must remember I'm pretty busy, and this isn't all I've had on my mind."

The developments in the amazing Lindbergh case were:

1—Jersey justice jousted with a windmill—with a boatbuilder's amazing deceit. It was the 79th day of repeating sorrow and multiplied horror at heartbreak house in the Sourland hills: and the murderer of the Lindbergh baby remained unknown, untraced and free.

2—Norfolk, rocked by Curtis hoax, looks for even more startling revelations to come.

3—The police intended to pursue further their inquiry into the request by Curtis early in his "ransom negotiations" for $25,000 from Col. Lindbergh. The Rev. Mr. Dobson-Peacock at Norfolk said the request for the money was made, but that the money was to be deposited in the name of all three intermediaries.

4—There were intimations that his detailed account of negotiations with the kidnapers—an account he gave the authorities a few hours before confessing it all was a lie—may, in fact, have held some elements of truth. These intimations were that some of the persons he named as the kidnapers may be actual persons, despite Curtis' subsequent disavowal of the story.

5—John Hughes Curtis, author of one of history's most cruel hoaxes, is in jail at Flemington. The charge was obstructing justice. Conviction provides a penalty of three years in jail, a $3000 fine, or both. The 47-year-old boatbuilder waived preliminary hearing.

6—Curtis spoke bitterly of the Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, and called Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage an old fogy. The clergyman, Curtis said, was a "publicity fiend."

7—Two telegraphic requests by State police that the Rev. Mr. Dobson-Peacock come to New Jersey and tell the authorities what he knows of the Curtis hoax were answered last night with a counter-proposal, in which the clergyman suggested that the police come to him.

8—The running down of the kidnaper-killer has slowed down. A check of State police activities today disclosed that the Curtis affair has taken the time of the principal police officials from the main search.

9—The phraseology of a statement issued by police last night for the first time fixed the time the murder of the baby was done. It said, "Between 8 and 10 o'clock p. m., March 1." The body was not found until May 12.

10—From Mexico City came word that Harry Fleischer, a suspect in the kidnaping and a notorious Detroit gangster, was in Mexico and that his arrest would be accomplished soon. Some of his movements there have been traced, police said.

11—Ten days after the kidnaping, Trenton police are said to have received a note telling them to "follow the telephone wires and they would find the baby's body and three men." Nothing was done about it. The baby's body was found alongside the emergency telephone wires into the Lindbergh home.

12—The New York Evening Journal finds evidence that Fleischer, hunted gangster, was in Englewood, N. J., several times shortly before the kidnaping.

HOAXER GOES BEHIND BARS

State troopers taking John Hughes Curtis to jail in Flemington, N. J., after the Norfolk shipbuilder was arrested and held in $10,000 bail charged with obstructing justice in the Lindbergh murder because of the ghastly hoax "negotiations" he confessed. If convicted he faces a year in jail, a $3000 fine, or both. (International News Photo.)

Peacock's Refusal Upsets Police Plans

Schwarzkopf's statement today also made comment on the telegram from the Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, in which the Norfolk associate in the Curtis activities declined to come to Hopewell, but said he would give all information to police going to Norfolk.

"Under these circumstances," said Schwarzkopf, "it will not be possible to confront Mr. Curtis with Mr. Peacock, which at this time we are very anxious to do. There is no legal way in which we can force Mr. Peacock's presence in either Hopewell or Flemington. The fact that Peacock requested the deposit of $25,000 in Norfolk is substantiated by Col. Lindbergh and others who were present when Peacock made the request."

The full statement as it applied to Curtis follows:

"On April 2, Mr. Curtis was in the company of Lieut. Richards and his actions are accounted for. There is nothing that would in any way link him with the actual kidnapers and the collection of the ransom money.

"When Mr. Curtis was first questioned he manifested concern for the safety of his family and we requested Director of Public Safety Col. Charles Borland of Norfolk, Va., to protect the Curtis family. No reports have been received that any threats have been made against any member of his family.

"It is understood that Mr. Curtis has a brother, George, who, however, lives in or near Norfolk and nowhere in the vicinity of New York. At no time did Mr. Curtis see any of the actual ransom notes, nor the signature on them. In fact it was the request of Col. Lindbergh for actual truth of his contacts with the kidnapers that was the basis, upon the desire, to have Mr. Curtis bring from his alleged kidnapers, a letter of communication bearing the signature known to be that of the kidnapers."

Governor Favors Envoy to Minister

At Trenton, Governor A. Harry Moore announced today that, in view of the fact that the Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock will not go to Hopewell, he favors "sending someone to Norfolk to see what he has to say."

Asked if he would designate a representative to question Dobson-Peacock, Governor Moore said that Co. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of state police, would probably name some one.

"Col. Schwarzkopf's representative will be my representative," he said.

In announcing that Dr. Condon failed to identify any of the photographs in the Mount Vernon, N. Y., rogues' gallery, Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey State police, also revealed the questioning of Condon.

Jafsie on Verge of Complete Breakdown

But "his answers adhere consistently to the fundamental facts related so far," Schwarzkopf's bulletin added.

Condon appeared on the verge of exhaustion at his Bronx home today. The 72-year-old pedagogue has spent a strenuous two months since he entered the Lindbergh case. Tomorrow he is scheduled to appear as witness before the Bronx County grand jury investigating the payment of the futile ransom.

Condon, returning home from delivering a lecture last night, revealed he received five or seven notes, supposedly from the kidnapers after he turned over the ransom money.

Not Sure of Writers, So Refused to Pay More

In one, he said, he was informed, the baby was not returned because "it makes too much noise." Others demanded more money, Condon declared.

He answered them as directed by placing his missives under a certain rock in the graveyard where he made the payment. But he said he was uncertain whether these notes from the purported abductors were authentic, as they did not bear the cryptic symbol characteristic of the original ransom note left in the Lindbergh home and the notes Condon received before he paid the money.

"But I wasn't taking any chances," Condon declared. "So I answered them. I was determined not to pay any more."

The second line of investigation concerned itself with Harry Fleischer, head of the Detroit Purple gang, long sought in connection with the kidnaping, and who was reported in Mexico City. He was believed by detectives to have been there at a hotel as recently as Tuesday, and determined pursuit of the gangster was taken up.

STORK DELIVERS 3 IN 1 HOUSE

Today at 18 Julia st., Malden, two families were fondly displaying three tiny evidences of his activity, all delivered within a few hours yesterday.

Twins, a boy an da girl, were born to Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Larson, living on the ground floor. Mrs. Larsen was Rose Fagan, for some years supervisor of the Hancock Telephone Exchange. There are three other children in the family.

A short time after the birth of the twins the stork paid a visit upstairs where a boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Joseph Carroll. Both mothers and children are doing well.

DID NOT FOLLOW 'LINDY'S PHONE LINE TIP'

Letter Told That 'Infant Was Well' and Held Nearby by '3 Frightened Men'

Newark, N. J., May 19 (AP)—The Newark Evening News said today that 10 days after the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby Chief of Police William Walter of Trenton received an anonymous letter directing police to "follow the Lindbergh telephone wires" and the baby and "the three other men" would be found.

The body of the kidnaped baby was found a week ago today near the main road from Hopewell to Princeton. Along that road ran special wires laid by police conducting the investigation from the Lindbergh garage.

Chief Walter wrote "attention" across the face of the letter, the paper said, and forwarded it to the police at Hopewell. He never received any report as to an investigation.

The News said Chief Walter favored the theory that the letter might have been written by one of four men who kidnaped the baby.

SAYS "BABY IS WELL".

"Mr. Chief:

"I am writing this letter from New York. I am going home to Canada. When I get to Buffalo I will mail it to you. That will give me more time to safely escape. I figured I'm in enough trouble. I got cold feet and the fellows knew it. I promised not to squeal and they gave me money and I'm going home.

"Maybe I won't get caught. We all thought we could make some easy money. We got a place near Elizabeth, N. J., and one of the fellows who is pretty smart runs a wire to this place and listens to everything the Linbergs say.

"He must be smart because every time the telephone rings he picks up the receiver and never talks. When he hangs up the receiver, he always says, 'I never knew I was so smart.'

"The Linberg baby is taken very good care of and is feeling fine when I left the fellows, only it cries too much and the fellows are afraid somebody will hear it. Nobody will hurt it because they all like it. The baby has lots of toys and a small black dog. The fellows don't want no more ransom.

"FOLLOW PHONE WIRE."

"They are all sorry and afraid. There is three more left now. We already stayed in this place eight weeks. I must soon catch the train. I love the Lindberg kid. I don't want to see him hurt.

"I don't know where is the name of the street or the road, o'n not far from Elizabeth, N. J. When we took the crib we road 55 minits and not very fast because somebody would see it.

"I quit the fellers because they don't agree. Follow the Linberg telephone wire and you will find

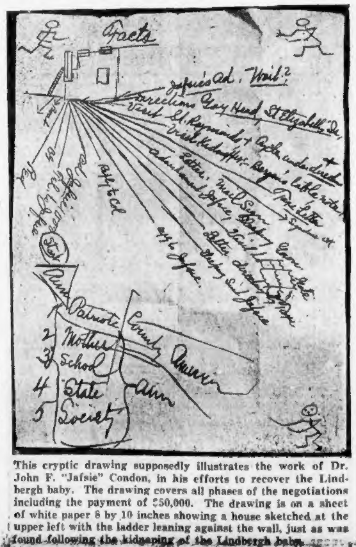
"JAFSIE'S" WORK IN BRIEF



This cryptic drawing supposedly illustrates the work of Dr. John F. "Jafsie" Condon, in his efforts to recover the Lindbergh baby. The drawing covers all phases of the negotiations including the payment of $50,000. The drawing is on a sheet of white paper 8 by 10 inches showing a house sketched at the upper left with the ladder leaning against the wall, just as was found following the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby.

CAPONE JAILING WORTH MILLION

Washington, May 19 (INS)—Conviction of "Scarface Al" Capone and his cohorts for violation of the income tax law has already proved to be worth $1,00,000 to the federal government.

This official estimate was before the House expenditures committee today, which received a report from the Treasury Department to be used in its investigation of consolidation of federal law enforcement agencies.

The report of Assitant Secretary Seymour Lowman disclosed that two Chicagoans paid $435,000 to the Government which officials didn't even suspect was owed in income taxes.

Ban 'Hot Dogs' at Baby's Grave

Princeton, N. J., May 19 (AP)—The hot dog stand established near the improvised grave of the murdered Lindbergh baby by an opportunist who saw a chance to enrich himself on the hunger of sight-seers, is to be removed.

Dr. John Grier Hibben, retired President of Princeton University, telephoned today to Gov. Moore and asked that the stand be taken away. Gov. Moore promised swift action.

It was Dr. Hibben who protested soon after the baby was kidnaped against barn-stormers who started an aerial hack business over the Lindbergh home. That was stopped, too.

Why Not Give Press Chance to Help Solve Lindy Baby Case?

By WIN BROOKS

The Lindbergh case, except that it is now known to be murder, is right back where it was on the early morning of March 2.

There are no more real clues to the kidnaper-slayer now than there were ten hours after the crime.

And there is no indication that the police are any closer to the real solution, and to arrest of the real criminal, than they ever have been.

The police efforts over an 11-weeks' period have been a dismal failure.

Col. Lindbergh, alone and working in co-operation with a queer conglomeration of personal friends, substantial citizens and real outlaws, has also failed in his private investigation.

IT MIGHT BE A GOOD TIME TO GIVE THE PRESS A CHANCE.

It might be a good time to erase the police deadline, withdraw the police guard from about the Hopewell home and allow the small army of reporters who have been kept at a distance to move in on the scene and see what they can do.

I do not know of any newspaperman who is not a more substantial and reputable citizen than Salvy Spitale.

I do not know of any newspaperman who is not more to be trusted than Irving Bits or Owney Madden.

I do not know of any newspaperman who would not respect the confidence of the Lindberghs as highly as Morris Resner.

The police, the federal agents and the underworld, the shipbuilders, the clergy and the welfare workers have had their chance. Why not see what the newspapermen can do?

The trail is nearly three months cold and the barn door may be locked on the empty stall, but I'd be willing to wager that the real newspapermen among the reporters who have been champing at the bit since the story broke could move in and do a more thorough job of investigation than has been done—and they might solve the crime.

SOLVED WITHIN A WEEK

And inasmuch as second guessing in this case seems to be an accepted practice, may I be permitted to venture that a half-dozen of the best crime reporters, given police powers immediately after the crime, could have solved the case within a week.

Newspapermen have solved a good many crimes where the police have failed. In Albany, N. Y., and Kansas City, Mo., they solved two famous kidnaping cases that police could not unravel. They have provided the key clue to the solution of many more cases in which the authorities received whatever credit there was forthcoming.

In this case the police have had too little imagination and the private investigators have had

Drawing Outlines Search by 'Jafsie' for Lindbergh Baby

New York, May 19—A cryptic drawing, supposedly illustrating the moves that Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon made to recover the Lindbergh baby from his kidnap-slayers, has been brought to light.

The "map," yielded by Condon at his home, in the Bronx, appears to indicate that Condon turned over Col. Lindbergh's $50,000 to a man known as Axel, and confirms a report that it was on a ship in Vineyard Sound that Lindbergh expected to find his baby after the ransom money was paid.

The drawing, on a sheet of white paper, eight by ten inches, shows a house sketched at the upper left, with a ladder leaning against the wall just below an upper window. Lines radiate from the house, seemingly showing the course of "Jafsie's" labors, although he would not comment on the meaning of the "map."

At the top of the page is the word "Facts." The first radiating line was entitled "Boat," showing Dr. Condon's belief that the baby was taken away in a boat. Then came the word "Red," obviously "Red" Johnson, friend of Betty Gow, nurse of the baby. Johnson was cleared of suspicion in the kidnap inquiry.

BETTY GOW MENTIONED

Next came the line "B. G.," the initials of Betty Gow. Following this is the inscription, "Telephone to Jafsie," which may mean Dr. Condon received a telephone call from a "kidnaper" before the Condon newspaper advertisement offering a $1000 reward.

This is followed by a line, "Reply to Colonel" and another, "Reply to Jafsie." The next is, "Sleeping Suit Jafsie," and then one, "Letter, Directions by Taxi." Joseph Perone, a taxi driver, delivered a message to Dr. Condon, it is known.

The following line was not quite legible. It appeared to be, "Visit to Pray, Gate." Then came, "Advertisement. Jafsie. Sleeping Gown," followed by, "Letter Mail Signed."

This may refer to the receipt by Dr. Condon by mail of a communication enclosing a duplicate of the signature on the ransom note left in the nursery, or explaining the signature on the note delivered by the taxi driver.

After this comes the mark standing for the meeting at St Raymond's Cemetery, where the money exchanged hands. It said "Visit St. Raymond's, Axel Under Directions," and then the directions given at the cemetery for the recovery of the baby from a boat in Vineyard Sound. "Directions, Gay Head, St. Elizabeth's Island."

Senate's Probe Reveals How Huge Profits Were Made by Syndicate in Wall St.

Washington, May 19 (INS)—An amazing picture of pool operations on the New York Stock Exchange in which a group of speculators rolled up a $5,000,000 profit in one week's handling of new Radio stock, was given the Senate committee today by Thomas E. Bragg, New York operator.

Bragg was one of the managers of the pool. The other, Franklin Ellsworth, could not be found by the committee. Bragg said the pool operated from March 12 to March 20 in 1929.

William A. Gray, special attorney for the committee, revealed the pool plungers included Percy A. Rockefeller, Nicholas F. Brady, Walter P. Chrysler, Herbert B. Swope, W. F. Kenny, J. J. Raskob, L. P. Fisher, Charles M. Schwab, W. C. Durant, Mrs. David Sarnoff, wife of the head of Radio Corporation, and other prominent New Yorkers.

The pool bought 551,000 shares by putting up $9,667,500 and took down a profit of $3,217,570.53 in the eight days, through Meehan & Co. It likewise bought 257,500 shares, putting up $2,730,500 and taking $1,502,310.68 profit through Hutton & Co.

PUT UP MILLION EACH

In the Meehan operation, Brady, Kenny, Raskob and Michael F. Brady each put $1,000,000 and each received $291,710.80 profit for the ten day venture.

The whole group in the two accounts made a total profit of $4,719,880.71.

Gray said the pool took some Radio stock too, through Block & Maloney, which raised the total profits to $4,924,078.27. It ran their total investment to $12,683,000.

Gray exhibited a copy of the syndicate agreement on this Radio stock. He read the agreement, under which the operators limited their holdings to 1,000,000 shares of Radio "long or short." It showed that Bragg and Frank Ellsworth, its managers, would split 10 per cent of the profits.

OTHERS IN THE POOL.

Charles M. Schwab invested $200,000 in the pool and received a profit of $38,342.15, Gray testified.

W. J. Higgins and Bradford Ellsworth each made a profit of $145,839. Walter P. Chrysler invested $500,000 and got $145,855.39 profit. Jessup & Lamont, a brokerage firm, put up $100,000 and got a profit of $29,171.08.

Herbert B. Swope put up no money, was given some of the stock and made a profit of $58,242.15. George F. Breen, L. P. Fisher and J. J. Riordan, each made a profit of $72,927.70.

RASKOB'S NET $204,197

Raskob was paid $291,710.80 by the pool but a notation on the books of Meehan & Co., showed a part of his share went to other traders, Gray asserted.

W. C. Durant put up $400,000 and received $145,855.39 in profits.

Percy A. Rockefeller put up $75,000 and got $29,171.08 profits.

In another account Rockefeller, Bragg and Ben E. Smith were given 8000 shares, put up no money and took a profit of $46,673.73.

J. A. Stillman, the noted banker, took a profit of $29,171.08 after putting up $100,000.

Gray produced a mysterious expense account of funds paid out by the pool. It included $10,000 to J. P. Tumulty, former secretary to the late President Wilson, and $19,000 to Eddie Dowling, the actor.

Bragg couldn't tell why either payment was made.

DO-X IS NEARING HARBOR GRACE

Halifax, N. S., May 19 (AP)—The German airplane DO-X, returning to Europe, was reported by the steamer Cavalier as passing Cape Canso, N. S., at 11:30 a. m., Eastern Standard Time, today. She was flying low through clear weather toward her first scheduled stop at Harbor Grace, N. F.

New York, May 19 (INS)—The giant German seaplane DO-X, en route to St. John's, Newfoundland, on her return trip to Germany, passed Cape Sable Island, Nova Scotia, at 9:40 a. m. E. D. T. today, according to a message received by the Radiomarine Corporation of America by way of Chatham, Mass.

The ship flew low over the State Harbor Academy at Chatham as it shot by the "elbow" of Cape Cod.

The airliner was making 90 knots and the weather was clear.

WIFE SPURNED BARTON YACHT

New York, May 19 (INS)—James E. Barton, eccentric dancer-comedian, vainly tried to induce his wife, Ottilia K. Barton, to take his $50,000 yacht and "some cash" in settlement of all alimony.

Because she refused, he sought a reduction of the $150 a week alimony awarded her when the couple separated, but today was under court order to continue paying that amount.

Mrs. Barton told Justice Frankenthaler her husband maintained his yacht, a kennel with 20 pedigreed dogs, a baseball field and two teams and a home on Long Island, with a $3000 bathroom.

Barton's plea to have the award slashed to $50 a week was denied

Lindys Feel Hurt More Than Angered by Curtis Hoax

By DOROTHY DUCAS.

Hopewell, N. J., May 19 (INS)—The burning resentment of the American public at the discovery of the cruel hoax perpetrated by John Hughes Curtis is not reflected in the Lindbergh household.

There, where gather the parents, grandmother and aunt of the slain baby, a sense of outrage is less important than a sense of affliction.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh waste no time in anger, a close friend of the family said today. Chagrined, hurt, amazed at the perfidy of a man whom they had thought their side, they have dismissed him from their minds, now that the truth about him is known.

NOTHING ELSE MATTERS

Why press charges against him? Why denounce him? It will do no good. The little boy they thought Curtis would help them find is dead. Nothing else matters.

Of course, when they first heard of Curtis' confession, they reacted as would any normal person—crying out against his deception. Then came the thought: "But what's the difference, now?" The emotion of revenge does not flourish in hearts full of grief.

Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, mother of Mrs. Lindbergh, and Betty Gow, nurse of the kidnaped baby, share this feeling too.

All the members of the household go about quietly, even listlessly, lacking that expectant tenseness that marked them during the long weeks of the hunt for the child. It is as if they are very weary, but determined to carry on.

LINDY'S MOTHER RETURNS

Betty Gow carried on even during the arraignment proceedings in the library of the Lindbergh house, when Curtis faced the man he had betrayed before going off to the jail in Flemington. While the impromptu court was in session the nurse helped Mrs. Ollie Wheatley, wife of the Lindbergh butler, prepare dinner for the family. She is staying on in the house, although her original duties cannot exist now.

Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, mother of the famous flier, spent the week-end with the family in the big white house, it was learned, but left for Detroit early Monday morning. She was very much broken up by the tragedy, it was said.

TOOK FUNDS OUT FOR CITY USE, SAYS DOLAN

City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan today explained the withdrawal, last December, of a large amount of city funds from the Atlantic National Bank, which was merged recently with the First National Bank.

ARMED ROBBER GETS 9 YEARS

Richard Butler, 32, of Fourth st. pl., East Cambridge, was sentenced today to from six and one-half to nine years in State prison for armed robbery and carrying a gun.

A jury found him guilty of the holdup of Miss Celia Hoddess, a Waltham st., South End, storekeeper.

Two men who tried to extort money from Butler's wife on the pretext of being able to "fix" the case were sentenced to a year in jail recently.

BANK PROBERS HIT AT ELY

the court clerk a slip of paper on which were the following questions:

"May it please the court—is it within the premises of the Grand Jury if the Grand Jury desires to make a report directly to His Excellency the Governor in relation to conditions we find to exist in certain State departments?"

JUDGE REMAINS SILENT

Judge Cox looked up when he had read the question, but his face was a mask, as he said:

"I will now read the second question."

He read out:

"Has the Grand Jury the right to make a report to this honorable court in relation to conditions we find to exist in certain State departments?"

About two weeks ago the Grand Jury invited the Governor to appear before it. So far he has not done so.

It is believed that the extraordinary action taken today was a direct outcome of the Governor's rebuff to the invitaters.

COURT LIMITS INQUIRY.

"You will recall that your oath requires you to make two presentments of all such matters and things as shall be given you in charge," Judge Cox ruled. "While there may be some question as to the legal definition of the word 'presentment,' yet there is high authority for this statement that this part of the oath can mean nothing more than that a patient and impartial investigation shall be bestowed upon every subject properly and legally submitted to the consideration and inquiry of the grand jury.

"It cannot extend to any inquiry or to any matter whatever not within your jurisdiction; that is, to nothing but the evidence brought before you of crimes and offenses committed within the body of the county for which you are sworn to inquire."

"It is outside your functions to bring forward in the form of presentment what may be called public grievances relative to the political or moral state of the country. It is your duty to present persons and not things. It is not your function to call to the public eye abuses in the administration of the government, or the existence of vice in the community.

CITES JURORS' DUTY

"If you have any evidence of things which might be thus set forth, it is your duty to the public and to yourselves under your oaths to present the individual guilty of such offenses. If you know of things which might be thus presented, you should present individuals."

Immediately after the jury reconvened, Bank Commissioner Arthur Guy and John S. Eaton, Sr., law partner of Edwin T. McKnight, banker, were called before the body for ten minutes each.

Neither Foreman Howes nor Asst. Dist. Atty. John J. Murphy had any further comment on the questions asked the court.

Court Holds Youth in Shooting Accident

The shooting of a 13-year-old boy in the leg caused Michael Roczlowski, 21, of Arlington st., Watertown, to be held for the grand jury in $300 bail when arraigned in Waltham District Court on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

The shooting occurred while Roczlowski was shooting at a target. The victim was Anthony Ranucci, 13, of Nichols ave., Watertown.

Bad Business Proves Good for Man Shy in His Alimony

Chicago, May 19 (AP)—Business for Nathan M. Greenstein is bad, which is good for Mr. Greenstein.

This paradox was revealed in court when Greenstein appeared to show why he should not be jailed for being $1000 in arrears on alimony.

"My business," said Greenstein, "is terrible. My wife offered to take it over to earn her alimony and pay me $10 a week. I'm willing."

"I offered that once," she replied, "but don't believe I could do it with business as it is."

"Very well," said the court, "if you can't do it, I don't see how you can expect your husband to do it."

The motion to jail Greenstein was denied.

$50,000 ASKED IN BALM SUIT

New York, May 19—The romance of meetings at a Vermont summer estate and gay haunts of Paris were described in a $50,000 breach of promise suit filed by Marjorie Marie Lavoye, former actress, against Charles E. Barrett, Manhattan business man.

The former actress charges Barrett first promised to marry her on June 1, 1923, and declared the same intentions during the summers of 1924 and 1925 at Underhill, Vt.

In July, 1926, in Paris, she says he again assured her he would make her his bride, and the spring of 1927 then was set for the event.

But Barrett kept stalling her off, Miss Lavoye laments, and was enjoying the freedom of her affections under the spell of the nuptials he pictured for her.

On October 1, 1931, according to the plaintiff, Barrett confessed that he was already married and that he could not wed her.

Hungry Jobless Raid New Zealand Store

Auckland, New Zeland, May 19 (AP)—Unemployed demonstrators raided a store in the little mining town of Huntly today, helping themselves to whatever they could carry away. Leaders said there was no spirit of ill will in the raid. The action was taken merely because the demonstrators were hungry.

BONUS ACTION FAILS AGAIN; PATMAN IRATE

Washington, May 19 (AP)—The House Rules Committee today deferred until Monday action on the Patman resolution calling for full payment of the soldiers' bonus.

Representative Patman (D. Tex.) sponsor of the full cash payment by the issuance of new money, said he would file a petition to force it out of the rules committee if action were not forthcoming soon.

Patman's bill was reported unfavorably by the ways and means committee.

MAGEE NAMED M. E. BISHOP

Atlantic City, May 19 (AP)—Dr. Junius Ralph Magee, district superintendent of the Seattle, Wash., area, was elected bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church today by the general conference on the 17th ballot.

As soon as the election was announced he was escorted to the platform where the board of bishops sits, by Bishop William F. Anderson of Boston, who ordained him to the ministry, and Bishop Titus Lowe, of Portland, Ore.

Dr. Magee will probably be consecrated Sunday. During the World War he was director of religious work in the Y. M. C. A. at Camp Devens, Mass., and in the Boston district.

Means Fraud Trial Set for June 6

Washington, May 19 (AP)—The trial of Gaston B. Means on charges of larceny after trust and embezzlement of $104,000 in an alleged Lindbergh ransom fraud was today set for June 6.

The former Department of Justice agent is accused of obtaining the money from Mrs. Edward B. McLean, estranged wife of the Washington Post publisher, on false representations that he could recover the Lindbergh baby.

Fitchburg Youth for Naval Academy

Washington, May 19—Senator Coolidge (Democrat, Massachusetts) has announced he had been advised by the navy that Carl Fellows of Fitchburg, Mass., had passed the mental examination for appointment as a midshipman at the Naval Academy.

Fellows will be authorized to report to the academy in June for the physical examination. He is the son of the Fitchburg treasurer, John B. Fellows.

Contract Awarded for Paving Work

Assurance that the resurfacing of Washington st. would be completed within 10 weeks was given Newton city officials when the state department of public works awarded the contract to the Sherry Construction Company of Fall River, whose bid was $130,885.75.

4 Youths and Girl Held in R. I. Holdup

Pawtucket, R. I., May 19 (AP)—Four young men and a girl were held today without bail for the grand jury, charged with robbery while armed of the uncle of one of their number. The five are Theodore Perron, 23; Joseph M. Stephenson, 20; Gifford B. Stephenson, 16; Earl F. Glockner, 20, and Bertha V. St. Gelais, 18.

Wales Plays Guide to Tourist Group

Windsor, Eng., May 19 (AP)—The Prince of Wales played guide to a group of tourists today and did a good job of it.

He escorted visiting Argentine students through Windsor Castle, outlining its history and pointing out its many treasures. He kept his party amused with reminiscences of his boyhood.

Fury of Public Alike in Lindy Kidnaping and Franks Case

This is the third and last of a series of articles depicting the remarkable similarity between the Lindbergh baby kidnaping and murder with the kidnaping and murder of Bobby Franks, in Chicago.

Twice since the war kidnaping cases have developed into murder—with the slayers in the role of ghouls, seeking to collect their ransoms on the bodies of their victims.

The "thrill" murder of Bobby Franks, by Nathan E. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, in May 1924, was the first.

The second is the brutal killing of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

In previous articles of this series the definite points of similarity in the two crimes, conception, execution and motivation, have been shown.

Today, as the horror of the Lindbergh case grows day by day, the reactions of the public to both crimes still further carry out the similarity.

It is almost as though the public reacted to a chemical formula of emotional eruption.

Deluge of Mail on Family of Victim

In the Franks kidnaping and murder a veritable avalanche of mail poured in on the stricken parents. The letters included offers of financial assistance, though Jacob Franks probably could have bought and sold 10 times over most of those who offered financial help. There were offers of personal help, theories, suggestions.

In the Lindbergh case the mail sent to the Hopewell home after the kidnaping came from 27 countries. At one time it reached a volume of 400 bags a day.

In the Franks case a sort of spotlight mania seemed to develop. One woman insisted that her confidence man husband was the kidnaper and murderer. Another man wrote in that he was the kidnaper, said that the boy was dead, and that he was going to commit suicide.

In the Lindbergh case not one but a dozen letters were written to the Hopewell headquarters by women, naming criminals with whom they had been living as the kidnapers of the child. Only the other day, in Brooklyn, one man startled his jailers by declaring that he was one of the kidnapers, though not the slayer.

Innocent Men Accused and Held in Franks Case

Out and out crank letters, in the Franks case, came from clairvoyants, fortune tellers and believers in dreams, tea leaves and numerology. Some of these letters seemed so convincing, before their authors were known, that detectives spent weary days trying to run them down.

In the Lindbergh case more than 600 actual letters were traced to clairvoyants, and similar believers in the occult. Arrests actually were made, because of such letters in a score of cities, only to result in the clearing of all prisoners so taken.

In the Franks case two instructors of a private school were "identified" by citizens, who probably believed their own stories when they testified that the two "were the very men" seen with a struggling boy in an automobile near the right time and place.

The two instructors were held by the police for days, until, under personal expense neither could afford, attorneys were retained and writs of habeas corpus used to free them. The ultimate confessions of Loeb and Leopold completely cleared both men of even having been near the scene at the time of the kidnaping.

The citizens who caused the arrests expressed sorrow at their "mistake"—but that would have been of small help to the two innocent prisoners had not fate and real detection uncovered the real killers.

Scores of "Clues" Linked Johnson in Kidnaping

In the Lindbergh case Henry Johnson, sailor friend of Betty Gow, the Lindbergh nurse, was picked up and questioned by the police for days because he had telephoned the nurse the night of the kidnaping. Several times as he was about to be released "witnesses" appeared and said Johnson had been seen in company with another man, with a woman, with two men—in places other than where he said he had been. Johnson's release came only when a lucky offer of a ride to a Bridgeport workman definitely proved his story of his whereabouts. Then Johnson was deported because he did not have proper citizenship papers.

Newspapers, magazines and even books discussed the Loeb-Leopold case. Lecturers, American and foreign, used it as a topic that never failed to draw a crowd. "Seldom, if ever," one commentator wrote, "has incredible incident been piled upon incredible incident to create a crime story as bizarre and sensational as the murder of Bobby Franks. The insensate atrocity of the actual slaying—the wealth and social prominence of the families involved"—

And in the Lindbergh case—President Hoover has discussed it officially; Ramsay McDonald, Benito Mussolini, George Bernard Shaw, all, with leading writers and leaders of a dozen nations have said those same things of the Lindbergh case.

And finally, when the actual trials and prison sentences of Loeb and Leopold ended the Franks case, the Literary Digest asked:

> "Has not this crime stirred up in everybody a shivering suspicion that the kind of civilization we have set up is producing more problems than we can handle?"

Lindy Wires Widow of Air Crash Victim

The message read: "Great sympathy."

Mrs. Lynch received the telegram on her return home from the funeral of William A. Clark, III., member of the Montana and Arizona family of copper magnates, who was killed with Lynch.

Lynch's funeral will be conducted tomorrow.

Miss Pankhurst to Start Lindy Fund

London, May 19 (AP)—Sylvia Pankhurst, British feminist, said today she was launching an appeal in England for a Lindbergh baby memorial fund which, she said, would be used "to do something for children" if Col. Lindbergh does not need the money.

Miss Pankhurst's motion was born of reports here that Col. Lindbergh had expended his entire fortune in the search for his kidnaped child. The move was typical of the sympathy felt for the Lindberghs here.

Miss Pankhurst said she would find others to act on the committee to take charge of the funds and stressed that she did not want the money sent to her.

Irish Woman Jailed 5 Years in India

Allahabad, India, May 19 (AP)—Savitra Devi, an Irish woman, who was arrested in January on a charge of possessing unlicensed arms and participating in revolutionary activities, was sentenced today to five years' imprisonment.

She is the daughter of an Irish missionary and is married to a Moslem.

Schipa Takes Gigli's Place in N. Y. Opera

New York, May 19 (AP)—Tito Schipa, for many years leading tenor with the Chicago Civic Opera Company, has been engaged to fill the vacancy in the Metropolitan Opera Company created by the withdraway of Benjamin Gigli.

Kidnaping Victim Admits Tale Is Hoax

Scranton, Pa., May 19—Justice of the Peace J. Drew Fague, 31, who disappeared from his home at Montursville, Pa., Sept. 17, last, and who was found yesterday lying along the Morgan highway with his lips sealed with adhesive tape and arms taped to his legs, has confessed his fantastic kidnaping was a "hoax."

French Exports Up

Paris, May 19—The customs office announced that imports for the first four months of 1932 exceeded exports by 3,157,000,000 francs.

Curtis Guarded From Mob Vengeance and Suicide

Trenton, N. J., May 19—The guard about the Flemington jail, where John Hughes Curtis is now held, has been instructed to watch the prisoner closely, both as a precaution for his own safety from any outside violence that might threaten and because of fears that the boatbuilder might attempt suicide.

Curtis, by his own confession, has stated that financial troubles leading to the bankruptcy of his boatbuilding business, and worry over the hoax he has perpetrated have weighed heavily on his mind.

HOUSE GROUP TO PUSH BIG BOND ISSUE

Washington, May 19 (INS)—With demands for a huge federal bond issue to finance a public works program and employ hundreds of thousands of men coming from all over the country, plans were made by a bi-partisan group in the House for a congressional mass meeting.

A "prosperity loan" of from $1,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 will be discussed at the meeting, to which all members of Congress will be invited.

ECONOMISTS INVITED

Noted economists will be invited to explain how the money would be spent, how men would be put back to work and purchasing power of the masses restored.

Representative Clyde Kelley (R.) of Pennsylvania, member of a "steering committee" representing Republicans and Democrats, said:

"The sentiment seems to be strongly for a public works program that will actually put men to work, to be financed by a bond issue of $5,000,000,000, more or less—whatever the amount is necessary."

Representatives Horr (R.) of Washington, Maas (R.) of Minnesota and others warned that before Congress adjourns it must pass a great public works program to give relief.

Horr said he was being flooded with telegrams and letters urging this program. Representative Barbour (R.) of California also said something must be done by Congress to put men back to work.

INDORSE HEARST PLAN

Since William Randolph Hearst over a year ago proposed a $5,000,000,000 proosperity bond issue to provide a vast public works program, many outstanding business men, organized labor and the rank and file of citizenry have joined the movement.

In the Senate Democratic leaders are striving to reach an agreement on the form of legislation and President Hoover has proposed a plan.

Support for the prosperity bond issue has been voiced by the American Construction Council, and the American Society of Civil Engineers, numbering some 150,000 leaders of that profession, while the American Federation of Labor repeatedly has appealed for such action by Congress.

SALES TAX SEEN AS SUCCESS IN MISSISSIPPI

Jackson, Miss., May 19 (AP)—Mississippi, the first state to employ a general sales tax as an antidote for financial poisoning, will get an idea how successful its new 2 per cent levy is going to be on June 15, when those taxed file their first monthly statements.

The tax, provided under the emergency revenue act of 1932, with a view to balancing Mississippi's $20,000,000 biennial budget, became operative May 1, but the rough spots in colection already are disappearing.

MERCHANTS CO-OPERATE

Members of the tax commission say merchants and the other payers, including virtually all who derive income from sale of goods or services, are co-operating fully toward making administration easy and several thousand dollars have been collected from dollar permits required of those who come under the levy.

No bulk revenue, however, will flow into the state treasury until June 15 when the first monthly statement, required of the taxpayers, will be filed. It is then the administration will get its first hint of how near the tax is going to approach the estimated $4,000,000 or more yearly expected for it.

HOW TAX WORKS

Tax plan allows an annual exemption of the first $1,200 of individual receipts and then imposes a 2 per cent levy on gross sales of retail business, gross receipts of public utilities except industrial power, and on the gross income of all trades and professions requiring a practitioner's license, including doctors, lawyers, and barbers.

A 1 per cent tax is collected on contractors, manufacturers of brick, tile, pipe and clay products, on bottles of soft drinks, automobile sales, mining and production of minerals and industrial power sales. Fractional levies are assessed against receipts of cottonseed oil mills, jobbers and wholesalers and general manufacturers.

'REDS' IMPERIL 60 AMERICANS

Nanking, May 19 (AP)—The safety of 60 Americans, mostly missionairies, was threatend today in Pengpu by 20,000 Chinese Communists overrunning northern Anhwei province.

The Communists surrounded a force of 7000 Nanking troops west of Pengpu and threatened to cut the Tientsin-Pukow Railway south of there, and block the arrival of reinforcements to aid the embattled government troops.

Reports from Americans in Pengpu said they doubted if the Communists would be able to capture the city, but apprehension was acute.

The Chinese government rushed troops to Pengpu last Monday at the request of the American legation. Three thousand troops were sent from here and another division from Soochow. Apparently it was this force which was reported surrounded by the greatly superior force of Communists.

Waiter Steals Cafe for Business Start

Chicago, May 19 (AP)—Frank Crest, 30, got arrested for stealing a restaurant.

Coffee urns, a lunch counter, silverware, dishes, linen, a stove—all the furnishings of a restaurant where he formerly was employed as waiter—were said by police to have been taken by Crest. He explained, they said, that he wanted to start a restaurant.

Dorchester Youths Injured in Crash

Leaving the roadway as an attempt was made to take a sharp curve at Grove and Plain sts., in Braintree, an automobile carrying two Dorchester youths struck an embankment last night and crashed into an electric light pole, throwing both occupants out.

John Hurley, 16, of Minot st., Dorchester, and Robert Sutherland, 19, of King st., Dorchester, were taken to Weymouth Hospital.

MAYER URGES SALES TAX PLAN

San Francisco, May 19 (US)—"In the direct sales tax on manufactures, advocated by William Randolph Hearst, lies the country's only hope for solution of its muddled budget problem."

Louis B. Mayer, vice-president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and State Republican leader, voiced that belief today. Mayer is here attending the meeting of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

"Only by distributing the tax burden evenly and in a manner by which it won't be felt, can Congress hope to balance the national budget without throwing business into chaos," he declared. "Any other form of taxation will penalize certain industries and be odious and a failure."

Hitler Makes Nazis Meet in His Hotel

Berlin, May 19 — Adolf Hitler, National Socialist leader, showed his contempt for parliaments today when he declined to enter the Prussian Diet building where the Nazi members were holding a meeting preliminary to the opening session of the Diet May 24.

After Hitler's refusal, 160 of the Nazi Diet members crossed the street to a hotel for a conference with their chief.

Man Has 10 Families, Seeking 11th Wife

Chicago, May 19 (AP)—The social status of Paul Ellis is largely a matter of statistics.

He is 67, estranged from his 10th wife, is wooing an 11th prospect, owes his ninth $166, is father of 16 children, grandfather of five, been in jail four times for defaulting alimony, faces six months more, while 14 charitable organizations help his 10 families.

Finds Receding Jaws Wins Girls Husbands

Toronto, Ont., May 19 (AP)—Dr. A. Moore of Ann Arbor, Mich., says he has discovered one thing about most women with receding jaws. That's a husband.

He says it is exceptional to find a woman with a retrusive jaw who has remained single.

Inventor of City Destroyer to Give Secret to Soviet

Washington, May 19—Lester P. Barlow, bomb wizard of the World War, today declared he would shortly leave for Moscow to place the secret of his new engine of destruction in the hands of the Soviet government.

"I offered my secret to the United States but got nowhere," Barlow said. "I will give it to Russia."

The new agency of destruction which Barlow claims to have perfected would destroy cities by remote control up to 1000 miles distance. The destruction, he declares, could be by means of high explosives, poison gas, incendiary agencies or combinations of all three.

Barlow, in his efforts to interest President Hoover and Congress in his secret, declared it was of so terrible a nature that it would outlaw war. He offered it as a means to force disarmament.

"I have been invited by the Soviet Government to come to Moscow and place my secret in their hands," the inventor said. "Fullest freedom of action has been guaranteed me.

"In Moscow I will prepare the charts and data and turn them over to the Soviet. There is the express condition that the Soviet will lay the secret before the Geneva armaments conference at once.

"It might be interesting to know that part of my secret has been in possession of the War Department for over two years, but they do not suspect it. It is in connection with an industrialization plan."

LYMAN FAVORS 5 BILLIONS' JOBS LOAN

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

"If the national government would only adopt the $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan proposed by William Randolph Hearst, from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 men would be put to work at once and good times would be here again."

This statement was made today by Frank E. Lyman, chairman of the Massachusetts Department of Public Works—the man who has put into operation the greatest program of emergency construction ever undertaken by this Commonwealth.

His department expended $20,000,000 on varied public works last year. Directly and indirectly, it furnished labor for 50,000 men. He has been in the public service 25 years. He was and is a prominent Republican.

"The economists agree," said Lyman, "that conditions in Massachusetts and New England, such as they are, are better than elsewhere in the country. We are ahead because we tackled the problem of unemployment and depression. We are ahead because we laid down a program of public construction, got men to work and got things going. What we have done for Massachusetts the government at Washington can and should do for the country as a whole."

GAS TAX BIG AID

Lyman is a positive talker, though not a vain one. Listen to him as he states his views to the readers of the Boston Evening American:

"Let's look this thing over," he says.

"Governor Ely proposed an extraordinary and emergency program of public works to the Legislature. He was not granted all he asked and not as quickly as he asked.

"But the fates were with us. The price of construction materials went down and the income from the increased gasoline tax went up. As a result, this department got $30,000,000 last year from direct appropriations, from the governor's emergency program and from the gasoline tax. And the reduced prices of materials enabled us to tackle more construction work, especially highways, than we had expected. We saved on some contracts as high as 30 per cent of the estimated cost. We thus found it possible to put more money into labor.

BUILT HIGHWAYS.

"This department put $500,000 into circulation every week last year. With what result? Good men had income who otherwise would have been idle or relying upon the pittances of charity. They became spenders instead of beggars. The money they spent gave jobs to clerks in the stores and meat markets. Money was kept moving, and it eased credit in many directions.

"We built many miles of fine highways. The autoists were supplied with broad and modern roadways, constructed for the highest speed consistent with safety.

"Now, what about the state, which spent this money? The state got roadways and public buildings that it really needs, and it got them at a fraction of the cost it would have had to pay in normal times. The state got much in return, when, if it had no program, it would have been required to spend the same amount of money for the charity care of its people.

"Here is a program which helped people who would have suffered, which built up the property of the State and which took advantage of the low prices of commodities. In my quarter of a century of public service I have never seen a better one.

GOVERNMENT CAN DO

"What we have done in Massachusetts the national Government can do 100 times over. By the issuance of the prosperity bonds for public works, it can derive every advantage which we in Massachusetts have derived. I would like to see it done. You can bring back good times by putting men to work, not by keeping them idle. This, the Government at Washington should be made to understand."

Chairman Lyman said that the unexpended balances from Governor Ely's emergency program plus the increased receipts from the gasoline tax will enable the State to carry on many wide projects throughout the year.

$1000 Saving on Power

To save about $1000 a year, the city of Newton is planning to install turbines and boilers to generate electricity for the pumping station at Newton Upper Falls.

GOV. ROOSEVELT IS NEARING MAJORITY

By the Associated Press

Thirty-two more votes picked up by Franklin D. Roosevelt in South Carolina, Vermont and the District of Columbia, placed the leading contender for the Democratic presidential nomination within reaching distance of a majority in the party convention.

HOOVER GAINS 28.

He had today 428 votes exclusive of 100 from New York and Pennsylvania which, while disputed, his managers expect him to receive.

Tomorrow and Saturday 40 more delegates will be chosen in Tennessee, Oregon and Nevada, with prospects he may get them all. This would run his claimed total of delegates selected by the end of the week to 568, 10 shy of a majority. This does not mean nomination, as a two-thirds vote is required.

President Hoover's walkaway candidacy gathered 28 more delegates from Alabama and Vermont, taking him to within six votes of the Republican nominating mark on pledged votes alone, excluding hundreds of uninstructed but friendly delegates.

VERMONT LEANS WET.

Two states in the party conventions acted on prohibition. Vermont Republicans sought resubmission before the year's end. Vermont Democrats declared for repeal, with light wines and beer in the meantime. South Carolina Democrats defeated a referendum proposal by the closest vote in that State since prohibition began and declared for a campaign on "economic issues" alone.

So far Democrat groups of a dozen states have spoken for repeal or resubmission in some form: New York, Iowa, Maine, Minnesota, Washington, Michigan, Illinois, North Dakota, Rhode Island, Wyoming, Montana and Vermont.

Five have lined up for enforcement or have defeated wet plans: Georgia, Missouri, Nebraska, Kansas and South Carolina.

Six Republican groups have called for repeal or resubmission, 10 have taken the dry side or have defeated wet plans and 17 have made no mention of prohibition.

PANAMAS?—ONLY RICE!

The panama parade, which employes of a certain City Hall department had planned to hold next Saturday, is off. It goes like this. A pedlar visited that office on Monday with a boxful of panamas. "You had better grab them boys," he said. "They are 'hot' off a boat from South America and I'll let you have them for a buck apiece. They are worth $20." A score of of the men made purchases, one buying six of them. Then they paraded to a School st. hattery to have them blocked and to get colorful bands for them. "Why these are made of rice stalks—they are not worth a dime apiece," the hatter told them. A certain pedlar had better keep away from the fourth floor of City Hall Annex.

Scientists in World-Wide Test of Cosmic Rays

Chicago, May 19 (AP)—A worldwide investigation to determine the nature and source of cosmic rays is about to begin.

Dr. Arthur H. Compton, professor of physics at the University of Chicago, will leave Friday for Hawaii, where he will use a cosmic ray meter on the Mauna Kea. From Hawaii he will proceed to Auckland, New Zealand, where tests will be made on Mount Cook. Mt. Kosciusk in Australia will be the next objective. Dr. Compton will also make tests on Mt. Chico in Panama, Huancayo, Peru, and finally at Mexico City.

Three other co-operating parties will report to Dr. Compton at the end of the summer. One will take measurements on the volcano Lanin in Patogonia and at Punta Arenas in Chile. A second, in charge of Prof S. N. Naude of the University of Cape Town, will climb Mt. Winterhoek in South Africa. In India, Prof J. N. Benade of Punjab University, Lahore, will go to Mt. Munga Purbat, in Kashmir, third highest peak in the world.

If the rays are found to be equal at all stations, Dr. Compton believes the find will support the hypothesis that they are photons, such as light and x-rays, rather than electrons. It will also support the theory that they are not generated in the local astronomical complexes—the solar system and the Milky Way—but result from atomic disturbances in the unknown regions millions of light years away.

HILLS OF BEANS SPILLED BY MR. GLOVER

By GILBERT SELDES

IT DOESN'T SEEM POSSIBLE that anyone so intelligent, clear-headed, far-sighted, frank, alert and honest as Irving W. Glover can exist in America today and, what is more, be Second Assistant Postmaster General. Here we've been asking for years for a man who would face the facts and tell the truth, consoling ourselves with the thought if one such man were found, the fog of lies and illusions would lift. And all the time Mr. Glover was sitting in his office in Washington, with a First Assistant Postmaster General and a full blown Postmaster General high above him, in bigger offices, with nobler emoluments, never indicating by word or deed, that he was our man. It wasn't, in fact, until Mr. Glover left the stuffy official atmosphere of Washington and got as far away as Springfield, Missouri, that he gave us a taste of his quality. Rare Mr. Glover!

GILBERT SELDES

To Stamp Sellers

Addressing his little servants, the postmasters of Missouri, Mr. Glover told them what they already knew, that a presidential campaign is coming, and ordered them to defend and support Herbert Hoover in that campaign. If while waiting for the afternoon mail the men of Missouri "pass a remark," Mr. Glover wants the postmasters to remember what he (Glover) was saying and to repeat it by way of answer, or to consult a little book (he didn't say what book) and get answers there. "As long as you do that," said Mr. Glover, "you are filling the job of postmaster." Those of us who thought the job meant selling stamps and money orders were obviously misinformed.

Support or Perish!

Mr. Glover made it easy for the malcontents, if any. "I shall be back in Washington Monday," he said, "and I will be glad to take the resignations of any of you postmasters who do not want to do it." Mr. Glover's language is singularly modest. Glad isn't the word. Relieved I should say.

It appears that a law officer of the Postoffice Department has, in advance, absolved Mr. Glover from any blame. Postmasters of the first three classes take the civil service examinations, but they are not civil service employes. We laymen wouldn't understand that even if we cared to, but it gives Mr. Glover legal backing. His ranking officers, Arch Coleman and Postmaster General Brown, have also used the power of appointment for political ends, and all is well in Washington.

Mr. Hoover, Too

During the months between Mr. Hoover's election and his inauguration, I was in a foreign country and, like all Americans abroad, was acutely sensitive to news from home. The news about Mr. Hoover seemed to consist of a hundred variations of one theme; he was discussing patronage. In this state he accepted the usual political leader; in that state he took a strong stand and refused to dicker with one group, but gave his assent to the acts of another; he would appoint so-and-so's nominee; he would give Blank first choice; he would rebuff Y for his defection or his half-hearted support by rejecting his favorites.

It seemed a tedious, trivial and ignoble occupation for a man elected to the presidency of the United States. It seemed as it seems now more in keeping with the qualities of a Second Assistant Postmaster General.

I know that this sort of thing has been going on for generations and not only in America. A Canadian report on contracts for the Canadian National system of railways says that Mr. Manion, Minister of Railways, announced that contracts "are now going mostly to Conservatives, thus reversing the practice under Liberal administration." The system may be as old as Adam and as universal as light, it still remains a little contemptible for the President of the United States to endorse.

The last time the banana occurred in world literature was about 1923 when there was a song about it, a song which our English cousins found unnecessarily confusing and to which our French friends replied with a witty song about pineapples. Today the banana recurs and gives a perfect example of the workings of science.

Dr. Sidney V. Haas was addressing himself to fellow physicians when he told them that the banana was now being prescribed as special diet for children in the treatment of "celiac disease." That children had celiac disease had not been universally known because it is a form of chronic indigestion to which we haven't yet applied the scientific name. But the annihilation of a prejudice against bananas ("too heavy for children") is the typical thing. The banana, it appears, has every vitamin except D, has most useful ferments and is good for children.

Mothers of the present generation of children have been feeding them bananas for the last 10 years, but when two or three of them get together they still scream with astonishment at the diets prescribed by other "baby doctors." It appears that bacon is just what the young idea needs in order to shoot up straight and fine, and meat goes to them almost as soon as it goes to puppies. For some strange reason they must have most of their fruit baked or cooked until they are about 10; except bananas. I suspect the new generation will be a bit better fed than its parents.

JUDGE RELENTS AS RUM STILL OWNER WEEPS

Herman Schultz, 23, of Bolton wept when arraigned at the bench before Judge James M. Morton, Jr., in Federal court today on a three-year-old indictment charging him with being interested in a still near Worcester and on another of recent date connected with a still in Medway.

"This looks like a prison term for you," said the court, eyeing Schultz, who is married and has two children.

COURT EXACTS PROMISE

Asst. U. S. Atty. Elihu D. Stone told the court the old indictment was brought when Schultz was 20 years old.

Chief Prohibition Agent Dennis Lordan gave the court a description of the stills and of how Schultz was identified with the old indictment after he had been apprehended on the new count.

After a long conference at the bench, the court exacted a promise from him to go straight and keep away from the liquor business.

Schultz then returned to the prisoners' bar and Clerk Frank Mason announced that the court's penalty was a suspended stence of two years in Worcester jail and probation for two years.

NEW RACE FOR ARMS IS SEEN

Rome, May 19 (AP)—Forecasting the failure or only partial success of the Geneva disarmament conference, Marquis Ferdinando del Carretto told the Senate today that it was prudent "to prepare to resume the race in armaments."

Senator Del Carretto presented the budget for the ministry of marine.

"Skirmishes during recent discussions on the question of so-called qualitative disarmament and the attitude of France on the naval program presented in her parliament make us believe that hoped-for reductions in armaments must still collide with strong obstacles," the Senator said.

"Italy's desires to reach a happy conclusion are now universally recognized but because it is necessary to look for the failure or partial success of the Geneva conference it is prudent to prepare ourselves and not neglect studies of new types of ships which may be essential."

TULIP KING HELD AS ABDUCTOR

New York, May 19 (AP)—Abram Hogewoning, known as the Holland "tulip king," was under arrest today on a warrant charging him with abducting his two small daughters from the home of their maternal grandmother, Mrs. Albert Bierck of Westport, Ct.

Mrs. Bierck said her daughter daughter filed a suit for divorce in Paris and that the court gave the mother custody of the children.

The grandmother said she took the children to her home last January. Hogewoning appeared there Sunday, she said, and took the children from the lawn. Police sought unsuccessfully to locate the children at the hotel where the father has been staying.

Gas Kills Mother, 3 in Pittsfield

Pittsfield, May 19 (AP)—Mrs. James McGinty, 28, and her three children were found dead in their home today. Gas jets of an oven were open. The tragedy claimed an entire family, except the husband, who was not at home. The children were John, 5; Douglas, 3, and Irene, 8 months old.

Pedlar Gets Alarm Clock to Rouse Sleepy Mare

Chicago, May 19 (AP)—From now on, John Iffenich's mare, Dolly, will have to get up on time.

Iffenich, a pedlar, accepted in Judge Donald McKinley's court, 76 cents and an alarm clock in settlement for the wrecking of his cart by an automobile.

"It's not for me I want the clock," Iffenich explained. "It's for poor old Dolly. She does so hate to get up."

Crew Abandons Rum Boat and Escapes

New London, Ct., May 19 (INS)—After a 70-mile chase under gunfire by two coast guard patrol boats, the liquor-laden speedboat Bernadine of Newark, N. J., was captured at Sagawong Point, Long Island, early today. The crew had beached the boat and escaped.

In the water and aboard 228 cases of liquor were found. The Bernardine's master is listed as Harry Manchester.

BUDGET CAN BE CUT BILLION

Chicago, May 19 (AP)—George M. Reynolds, chairman of the Continental Illinois Bank & Trust Co., says he believes a business man, "through economies," could cut the $4,000,000,000 national budget at least $1,000,000,000 "without much effort.

"But to balance the budget through economies, simple as it would be, would take Spartan-like courage," he said, in urging that the affairs of the government be put on a business-like basis at once.

He declared taxes on business already were burdensome, and making them higher at a time when business should be confronted with as few disturbing elements as possible would work incalculable harm. In economies, he said, lay the solution to budget problems.

$500 Wedding License Proposed to Help Keep Taxes Down

St. Paul, May 19 (AP)—A suggestion that a charge of $500 for each marriage license issued may help solve the tax problem and maybe divorce and other marital difficulties, was made to the Tax Relief Association by Mrs. Bertha Ortell.

"A young fellow gets an automobile on installments," said Mrs. Ortell. "Then he hunts up a girl, and before you know it he is married. Then there are children and taxpayers have to dig up money to school them; often to support them.

"Now if a fellow had to have $500 to get married he wouldn't be in such a hurry."

Princeton, N. J., May 19 (US)—Edward Dickinson Duffield of South Orange was chosen acting president of Princeton University, it was announced today.

BANDITS GIVE VICTIM FARE

Binford, N. D., May 19 (AP)—Several rolls of nickels, given him for use as "car fare back home," were held as souvenirs today by Chester Doolittle, banker of Ipswich, S. D., released near here after being kidnaped by four robbers.

Doolittle, cashier at the bank of Ipswich, 175 miles south of here, was taken along for "protection" by the robbers after they had shot and wounded H. P. Beebe, president of the bank, escaped with $4550 cash and $17,000 in registered bonds.

The cashier was blindfolded and bound shortly after being taken from the bank in the morning and 10 hours later he was dumped out of the car at a farm six miles west of here. Just before they released him the men gave him the nickels.

Doolittle hailed a motorist and notified Binford authorities.

Milk Provided for N. H. Schoolchildren

Concord, N. H., May 19 (AP)—Unnumbered New Hampshire school children, under-nourished as a result of the economic situation, are being provided with milk through the efforts of 53 women's clubs, the State unemployment commission reported today.

In addition, the committe announced, the women's clubs are undertaking the task of cleaning, mending and distributing clothing.

Training of Girls Neglected, He Says

Training of girls in the public schools is of much more importance than the training of boys, and it has been sadly neglected, Dr. William C. Crawford, retiring headmaster of the Boston Trade School for Boys, told the members of the Boston Principals' Association last night at the annual spring meeting at the Hotel Victoria.

DO YOU INHALE?

ONE of the mysteries in cigarette advertising has been the apparent fear of the word "inhale." It seems rather foolish—for everybody inhales—whether they realize it or not... every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

Think, then, how important it is to be certain that your cigarette smoke is pure and clean—to be sure that you don't inhale certain impurities.

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question... because when you smoke Luckies your delicate membranes get the protection no other cigarette affords. All other methods have been made old-fashioned by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? Of course you do! So truly this message is for you.

SEABURY SEEKS BANK CACHE OF WALKER AID

New York, May 19 (AP)—Two mysterious packages which Russell T. Sherwood, missing agent of Mayor James J. Walker, placed in the custody department of the Bank of Manhattan Trust Co., February 25, 1931, were the subject of inquiry by the Hofstadter legislative committee today.

Frederick C. Harris, secretary of the Manhattan Co., was the first witness questioned by Samuel Seabury, counsel to the committee. Harris was the holder of a power of attorney of a safe deposit box held jointly by the mayor and Sherwood in the Chase Safe Deposit Co.

Harris said he had known Sherwood since January, 1930, when Sherwood became an employe of the trust company, but that he had not seen him since August last year. He denied that he had received packages from Sherwood and said his recollection was that Sherwood asked him if the bank had a safe keeping department and later delivered the two packages to the head of that department.

A photostatic copy of the receipt given to Sherwood for the two packages was placed in evidence. It stated that "two sealed envelopes, contents unknown," were placed in the custody division of the bank Feb. 25, 1931.

MOTHER HUNTS WAR VETERAN

A Gold Star mother, who gave two boys to the country in the World War, today asked the Boston Evening American to assist in finding her remaining son, also a veteran, who is missing.

She is Mrs. Annie G. Cook of 108 Pierce st., New Bedford, who seeks information concerning John L. Cook, from whom she last heard in April, 1930.

The wound of her two war sacrifices somewhat healed by time, Mrs. Cook is hoping desperately that she will find her remaining son.

John Cook, who served in the navy during the war, is a ship's engineer, having followed the sea for years. His mother last heard from him when he was aboard the Gen. Markham, which she thinks may have been a tanker.

"I would like to get some word of him," she said, smiling bravely. "There is a possibility that he became sick and lost his memory and he may be in a hospital."

Cook is described as 35 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall, with reddish-brown hair and blue eyes.

BOMBAY RIOT DEAD NOW 105

Bombay, May 19 (AP)—Total casualties in the week's Hindu-Moslem riots here rose today to 105 dead and 978 injured when severe clashes occurred in the mill area north of the city in which six were killed and 30 injured.

The trouble started when Hindu mill workers attacked a group of Moslem pedestrians.

The police fired on the rioters. Forty mills were closed and 50 workers arrested.

The remainder of the city was fairly quiet. All attempts at looting were quickly checked. The chief anxiety this afternoon was the momentary possibility that troubles in the mill area might spread.

Mrs. Leary, who is 65, had just moved into the house and had been burning papers when her clothing became ignited. (Staff Photo.)

WHY NOT LET PRESS HELP?

too much. The methodical police were slow to rise to any clue of a fantastic nature even though this was a fantastic crime.

The private investigators and go-betweens were willing to swallow any lead, no matter how incredible or bizarre, without a semblance of investigation worthy of the name because they were primarily after the baby, not the kidnaper, and they wanted to believe anything of a hopeful nature.

ANYTHING IS POSSIBLE

The trained newspaperman who is deserving of the adjective is an infinitely harder worker than the trained policeman and—the great detectives of fiction to the contrary notwithstanding—a more skilled questioner. He has a more open mind; his work daily brings him in touch with actual situations as weirdly unbelievable as fiction, and not all of these, by any means, are crimes.

He comes to believe, cynically perhaps, that anything on this God's green earth is possible—and he comes pretty close to being right.

He is not afraid of treading on anyone's toes. He has imagination to the nth degree, but, in the face of cold, contradictory evidence against it, he doesn't allow his imagination to run away with him.

Had Col. Lindbergh, in his first hours of grief, turned to a council of trained newspapermen instead of seeking the agencies of rum runners, dope smugglers and stock swindlers, he might have saved himself the torture of false hopes and a considerable fortune.

PUBLIC IS AROUSED

And that is written with the deepest respect and appreciation for the airman's courageous personal efforts to recover his stolen child. I think he was ill-advised.

The John Hughes Curtis "negotiations" have collapsed with a nauseating thud—so sickening a reverberation, in fact, that the public is asking itself whether the murder of a stolen, helpless baby is, after all, a more despicable crime than the deception of its heart-torn parents through false hope inspired by an absolutely fiendish desire for personal gain.

PRESS BADLY TREATED

And while the Dr. John "Jafsie" Condon negotiations are still within the official boundary of importance there is a fast-growing belief that the aged welfare worker never was in touch with the actual kidnap-slayer and that those who bilked him of $50,000 knew nothing whatever of the fate of the baby.

The newspapers and their representatives on the scene have been forced to take a back seat in the Lindbergh case to date. There never was a big news story in which there was so little opportunity for good reportorial work; the press has been hobbled.

It has—in most cases, gracefully—received its news second-hand, through official censored channels, hours after it had "broken," and it has been forced to accept and print contradictory announcements from officials who should be working together with one mind and aim.

It was 10 hours after Curtis confessed his hoax before Col. Schwarzkopf announced it to the press, although there was no reason the announcement should not have been made immediately.

Governor Moore announced that Curtis twice had attempted suicide over disgrace and grief brought about by realization of the enormity of his deceit—and Col. Schwarzkopf contradicted him. Perhaps the officials do know where they are at, but the public certainly doesn't.

WORKING BACKWARDS

Any trained newspaperman, given an hour or two alone with Curtis, and possessing official authority to require answers to certain questions—(say, a newspaperman advising Col. Lindbergh in his private efforts)—would have reached the bottom of the shipbuilder's incongruous, incoherent yarn.

And no trained newspaperman would have advised Col. Lindbergh to have $50,000 thrown over a cemetery wall at midnight on the slim evidence presented by the "Jafsie" contacts; nor would he have advised the father to seek trace of the bills four days after payment of the ransom had failed to restore the child.

The public, at least, and quite possibly the police, have lost sight of some fundamentals of this case in the bizarre developments which have sprouted from it.

The authorities are now engaged in working backwards through these bizarre developments and that should bring them, eventually, to a three-piece ladder, a chisel, a muddy footprint and an invasion of a brightly lighted home at an early hour in the evening by someone moved by an insane urge to steal the nation's most famous baby and beat him to death a few miles from his crib.

If all hope for solution of the crime has not been abandoned, it might be well to unhobble the newspapermen on the scene and give them a chance.

Flier Breaks Jail in Spain; Recaptured

Cadiz, Spain, May 19 (AP)—Pablo Rada, airman who flew the South Atlantic in 1926 with Maj. Ramon Franco, escaped through a 300-yard tunnel from Port Santa Maria jail today along with 23 other political prisoners.

A few hours later he was captured near Seville.

OIL FOES WARN OF LONG FIGHT ON TARIFF

Washington, May 19 (AP)—Opponents of the oil tariff warned the Senate today if the revenue bill is to be opened to the oil, coal, copper and lumber duties, a move was in order for complete tariff revision involving months of work.

Sen. Norris said he had appeals for tariff relief from hundreds, but he had opposed action because he didn't think the import duty belonged in the revenue bill.

"But," he said, "if we are going into it let's go to work. There may be 500 tarff rates to consider."

Opening the opposition to the oil import tax, Sen. Tydings said he was going to offer several tariff amendments unless the advocates of the oil, coal, copper and lumber duties withdraw their proposals.

"If we are going to have a tariff bill let's have one to take care of the whole country," he demanded. He also spoke of 500 tariff amendments.

Tydings said he was "ready to strike out every tariff item in this bill and pass it this week."

Sen. Fess joined the opposition to inclusion of the tariff items in the revenue bill.

He suggested an emergency tariff measure.

"I would be inclined to favor that," agreed Tydings.

the baby and the three fellers. The fellers were pretty nervous.

"If I did not like the baby I would not write this, but if you want the baby and the fellers you must keep this secret. These fellers have a radio and reed plenty newspapers. If you catch the fellers and the baby will you let me go free."

The letter was signed simply "thank you" and bore no signature. It was printed with pencil. The paper was blue-lined and of a cheap grade. The letter was postmarked Buffalo, N. Y., March 10, at 6:30 p. m. The printing was similar to that on a postcard mailed from Newark a day or so after the kidnaping.

Chateau in France Is Offered Lindbergh

Paris, May 19 (AP)—Robert Davis, former pastor of an Englewood, N. J. church, who baptized Anne Morrow, wrote a letter to her mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, offering his chateau in the south of France as a retreat for Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Mr. Davis said he understood at least 10 or 12 Americans and Frenchmen had made similar offers of their chateaux.

His Chateau de Mombrison is at Margaux, in the Department of Gironde, near Bordeaux. It is surrounded by a vineyard, where a dozen peasants are employed.

GARNER URGES 2 BILLION MORE FOR RELIEF

Washington, May 19 (AP)—Speaker Garner today in a formal statement made three suggestions to relieve the economic situation in the country and said he hoped the administration would co-operate with Congress in enacting them into legislation.

His program called for issuance of $1,000,000,000 in bonds for a government-building program, broadening the base of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to add $1,000,000,000 to its present $2,000,000,000 capital and passage of the Huddleston bill to place $100,000,000 in the hands of President Hoover to be used in relieving "extreme suffering in any section of the country."

Garner said he was "unalterably opposed to the dole, but it must be apparent that before Congress adjourns some real effort must be made toward taking care of the unemployment situation.

"Ever since Congress met in December," Garner said, "It has been discussing and undertaking to pass legislation that would be helpful in relieving distressing economic conditions.

"I have been hopeful these legislative efforts would tend to bring about better conditions, but the facts are that the unemployment and distress of the people are greater now than when Congress was organized last December."

SETTLERS FLEE QUEBEC FIRES

Quebec, May 19 (AP)—Forest fires in a score of heavily wooded areas near Quebec and Toronto became more menacing as the third day of conflagration dawned and scores of small settlers' communities were being evacuated.

Homes were razed, schools deserted and an unestimated amount of property loss caused as the fires refused to be brought under control.

Thousands of volunteer firemen were battling desperately, but were making slow progress.

At least two persons lost their lives, according to reports reaching here. A trapper reached Toronto with his wife and child and said he was certain two of his friends had perished.

AIR PASSENGER SAVES PILOT

New York, May 19 (INS)—A passenger in a plane, despite his own injuries, today rescued the pilot of a burning plane which fell at North Beach airport.

The pilot, John Cavalie, was caught in the cockpit of the flaming plane with a broken leg. John McCormick, the passenger, reached Cavalie and extricated him.

Socialists Threaten After Fascist Clash

Graz, Austria, May 19 (AP)—Clashes between the Fascist Heimwehr and Socialist workers in Donawitz received much attention in today's newspapers because the Socialists threatened to mobilize the Republican defense organization unless the government took drastic steps to prevent the Heimwehr from assuming police functions. Two persons were injured when Heimwehr members began to patrol the streets in groups.

ONE OVERCOME, 10 SAVED FROM DEATH BY GAS

Stephen J. Barter, 43, was overcome and 10 members of his family narrowly escaped suffocation by gas in their home in Sheridan ave., Medford, early today.

One of Barter's daughters sleeping on the second floor of the house was awakened by the whining of the family's dog shortly after midnight. She rushed downstairs and discovered Barter in a stupor on the floor of a room adjoining the kitchen.

She called the Medford telephone operator and shouted 'Inhalator!' While the operator put through a call to the Medford police station she cautioned the girl, who was growing weak from the effects of the gas, to open all the windows in the house.

Firemen and police worked over Barter for 15 minutes in relays with an inhalator while Barter's eight children and wife were aroused from their beds on the second floor and conducted them to the street.

Barter was taken to Lawrence Memorial Hospital.

Tiny Mouse Conquers 12 Rattlesnakes as Observers Gape

Quincy, Ill., May 19 (AP)—Little "Daniel Mouse" today was rechristened "Richard the Lion-Hearted." It conquered the whole collection of rattlesnakes in a downtown display window.

Daniel, a tiny rodent captured in the store, was put in a cage containing 12 reptiles.

But observers equipped with stop-watches to see just how long it would take the snakes to devour the mouse got the surprise of their lives.

Little Daniel advanced boldly, nipped two snakes who were the first to bare their fangs at him and drew blood from a big rattler. The others quickly retreated.

Woolsey May Form Team With Langdon

Hollywood, Cal., May 19 (AP)—Out of the recent disagreement of Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey a new film comedy team may come.

Woolsey said today negotiations are under way to engage Harry Langdon, who returned to filmland last week after a year's absence, for the part Wheeler was to have played with Woolsey in a picture under contract.

ONION STRONG, BUTTER SLIPS, EGGS DROP

Washington, May 19 (INS)—Retail food prices decreased approximately 1.13 per cent in April from March prices, while the decrease since April a year ago amounted to about 16 per cent, the Bureau of Labor Statistics announced today.

The largest decrease was in butter prices, which dropped 9 per cent. Fresh eggs declined 5 per cent, sliced bacon, hens, fresh milk, oleomargarine, lard, rice, canned corn, prunes and bananas, 3 per cent.

Onions increased 20 per cent, cabbage 14 per cent, oranges 4 per cent, leg of lamb 3 per cent, sirloin steak, chuck steak and plate beef 1 per cent.

In Boston, Fall River, Manchester and New Haven prices decreased 1 per cent and Providence less than five-tenths of 1 per cent.

North End Project Approved by House

On a roll-call vote, 123 to 85, the House concurred with the Senate in amending the bill for $3,000,000 to widen Cross and Merrimack sts. in the North End and to establish a traffic circle in Haymarket sq., in connection with construction of approaches to the East Boston tunnel.

LAW TO CURB AUTO TAX RACKET PLANNED

This is the 18th in a series of articles exposing the tax collection racket, a form of legalized extortion which is fattening the pockets of unscrupulous constables and victimizing reputable citizens of Massachusetts.

Conditions revealed by the Boston Evening American's expose of the tax collection racket throughout the state have proved so alarming that a group of prominent citizens today formulated plans for relief legislation that will put a stop to present abuses.

A special commission is advocated to study the whole situation. Stricter care in the selection of constables and a higher standard of qualifications are urged.

CLAIMS BOUGHT

The automobile industry is especially interested in methods used in the collection of the excise tax [illegible] legislative counsel [illegible] automobile interests sent [illegible] for the following letter, which speaks for itself.

"I notice the fight which you have been making to protect the automobile owners against the tax collection racket which has been especially carried on by constables —— and ——.

"A number of these cases have come into my office and I am convinced that the constables go out around the various cities and towns and buy up the claims of the various cities and towns on the excise taxes.

PLAN LEGISLATION

"I have a number of cases where the tax was only $2 and the constables have presented bills of from $10 to $20.

"As I am particularly interested in the protection of automobilists, and, as I have introduced a number of bills in the Legislature for the protection of this class, I would be pleased to cooperate with you and introduce a bill in the next Legislature which will prevent this tax racket against people who have met with financial troubles or who have not received bills for excise taxes.

"At such time as you may think desirable, I would like to have an interview with you, get together the names of all those who have been victims in this racket and prepare a suitable bill which can be introduced in the next Legislature."

Mr. Baker and the Tax Editor took initial steps today. Counsel for the automobile interests was consulted and a careful survey of the situation was made.

BILLS HELD UP

"I have had many cases called to my attention," said Mr. Baker, "in which automobile owners have never received an excise bill and have been penalized and subjected to annoyance and humiliation by constables.

"Motorists have to pay enough without being saddled with this extra and unjust burden. Study of many cases at close range indicates that notice is purposely delayed to make business for constables."

A high authority on taxation who requested that his name be withheld, said:

"New laws may be passed from now until doomsday and these evils cannot be stopped unless more care is exercised in the type of men selected as constables. In most of the communities constables are elected. They seldom give the trouble that appointed constables do.

CHEAT EACH OTHER

"There are constables and constables. Elected constables are usually more cautious as an elective officer is forever subject to public sentiment.

"Certain appointed constables take matters in their own hands and do pretty much what they please. They don't seem to be governed by the law or answerable to anyone. We have known of cases where they cheated each other in collections. Constables are appointed in Boston and some of them have caused considerable trouble.

"There are certain constables whom I don't care to name whom we supposed we were rid of but find that they are still operating. I feel that the rank and file of elected constables are more diplomatic and careful of the rights and feelings of the citizens.

"Constables have other duties besides collecting taxes. They serve court papers and summonses. The claim that constables ought to be used in their immediate neighborhood in the collection of delinquent taxes is combatted by the fact that most constables dislike to dun their friends and neighbors.

"Lazy and inefficient tax collectors, finding their bonds in jeopardy are apt to go to the opposite extremes to make up for their laxity and employ constables whose methods prove offensive."

"More consideration should be shown delinquents in the present hard times, but the public should not overlook that in normal times there is a certain class in every community that are just as troublesome as chronic tax-dodgers as are ruthless constables under present abnormal conditions."

Another instalment in the Boston Evening American's investigation of tax abuses will be published tomorrow.

HUMAN NATURE'S LOWEST DEPTHS PLUMBED BEFORE LINDBERGH CASE

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

PROF. ROGERS

I WONDER WHETHER we may not be trying to read too great and sweeping significance into the Lindbergh tragedy, a significance which a soberer and better balanced generation would think twice before imputing to the case. There are, of course, several perfectly reasonable explanations why we are doing it; the enormous publicity in which Col. Lindbergh and his wife have lived for the past few years; the somewhat indiscriminate admiration which his achievements aroused; the concern with which the public views the increase in successful criminality in the underworld. These are explanations; they are not necessarily good excuses.

One of the most brilliant of the Frenchmen of the past generation, Remy de Gourmont, used to emphasize the necessity for what he called "the dissociation of ideas." According to him, none of our common concepts or notions is "pure"; it is most likely to be a complex of ideas, some of which have nothing to do with the matter in hand.

* * *

Kidnaping Confused With Reign of Crime

One of these illogical complexes, based on insufficient evidence, as we now recognize, was that which confused the kidnaping of the Lindbergh child with organized racketeering, another form of the criminality which began with beer-running and went on to the intimidation of business and the corruption of municipal and state government. The fact that Al Capone tried to use this wide-spread belief to escape from prison and that Col. Lindbergh himself, in his anxiety to leave no stone unturned, employed a couple of racketeers as go-betweens, strengthened this popular fallacy.

Today there seems to be no reason for confusing the kidnaping gang, if there were a gang, with the "big business" of organized law violation. Nor does there seem to be any real reason for ascribing the kidnaping to the particular moral atmosphere of the past decade brought about by the Eighteenth Amendment and its results. The records of American crime, and of European crime as well, would show us that kidnaping is a commonplace crime enough, sporadic, haphazard, and only too often successful.

The shade of Charley Ross might smile a little wryly at our attitude toward the whole business. There was furore over his tragic story, but a furore which kept strictly to the matter in hand and did not dream of dragging in all the extraneous ideas which have kept us emotionally upset for two months.

Similarly, it is a little difficult to understand why the despicable activities of the Norfolk man to stave off bankruptcy by getting some dishonest and easy money should be heralded as if it were somehow contrary to human nature, as if it denied everything that America stands for, as if it outranked other crimes.

* * *

Misfortune Confined to No Class

I had the good fortune to go to Cambridge Latin School under a school master of the old regime, William Frothingham Bradbury, author of well-known text-books on algebra and geometry. He believed in the old curriculum of Greek and Latin, Mathematics and History and he taught them in the old-fashioned disciplinary way. His record of competent students closely approached that of Boston Latin School, as high a tribute as can be paid.

Every morning before classes he conducted assembly; hymns and scripture reading. It was always noticeable that his scripture reading seldom dealt with the hope and promise of the New Testament. Almost invariably he read from the Proverbs of Solomon, those brief, laconic, exact, hard-boiled epigrams that dealt with the general cussedness and weakness of the human race. We became familiar with the sluggard and the slothful man, the fool whose laughter is like the crackling of thorns under a pot, the unwise young man and the strange woman, the quarrelsome woman, the daughters of the horse-leech who cry "give, give," the unrighteous and violent man, the man of blood, and all the rest of them.

The centuries that were brought up on that doctrine never attributed undue or universal wickedness to actions which are, if not a commonplace, at least a constant function of the human race. The people who had absorbed King Solomon's way of thinking were probably more democratic than we. They understood the democracy of weakness, sin and crime. They expected those who sit in high places to misbehave as well as the poor and humble. And even in the case of God's anointed, the monarchs by divine right, they never pretended to believe that any human being might consider himself safe from the accidents and misfortunes common to us all.

Unrestrained Sentiment Dangerous

If it be true that Col. Lindbergh when warned to guard his son replied that no one would dare to try anything against him, because of his peculiar position in America, that, in itself, is evidence of an unwholesome and disquieting state of opinion. True, it was not entirely his fault: it was the fault of the American press. It was not kind to Col. Lindbergh nor to his child to call the baby "America's crown prince," "America's darling," and all that sort of thing. It was not judicious and it was not true. There is a corrupting power in sentimentality which must be restrained.

The press of America will say that in working up this sentimental excitement it was only responding to the overwhelming demand of the people. Thoughtful people will be inclined to reply that the press first created this demand and then fed upon the appetite thus created. The result was a condition which the parents of children less publicized than Col. Lindbergh's must resent and should do well to resent. A similar crime affecting one of them is of no greater and no less importance than one affecting him.

The kidnaping, the murder of the child, the stealing of Col. Lindbergh's money on false pretences, the treachery of Curtis, were all grave crimes. They do not necessarily connect with any nation-wide decadence. And these crimes are certainly not in a class by themselves, as if nothing like them had ever taken place. They are not a revelation of undreamed wickedness, either in the human race or in the American people. We do well to be grave over them; we do not do well to act startled and surprised. They are merely examples of the inescapable by-products of human nature.

In justice to the Lindberghs themselves, it would be well if the American people were to regard these matters as serious, worthy of proper punishment but not as utterly abnormal. For if we consider them abnormal, we shall not be properly protecting all the other parents and babies.

ADMITS LAPHAM DEATH NOTE

YOUTH DEMANDS $10,800 FOR JAIL TERM

Threat Warns Millionaire "It's Your Life or Mine After 108 Weeks at Concord"

Charged with an attempt to extort $10,800 from Henry G Lapham, millionaire broker, clubman and philanthropist Salvatore Schiavone, 23, of Henchman st., North End, was arrested in his home today

In addition to the charge of attempt to extort, Schiavone was charged with threat to kill and was held in $25,000 for hearing May 24

Police said Schiavone figured the sum at $100 a week for 108 weeks in Concord Reformatory, a sentence imposed for an attempt to extort $5000 from Lapham five years ago.

In the demand letter, quoted by police, a sentence was included that read.

"This debt must be settled immediately or it's either my life or yours."

It was delivered, police said, at the Congress st. brokerage firm of which Lapham is a member.

Lapham, whose home is in Warren st., Brookline, disappeared immediately after receipt of the letter but Mrs Lapham appeared at police headquarters and conferred with Deputy Supt. McDevitt and Inspector Augusta

HENRY G. LAPHAM

"I have been waiting patiently around these premises for quite a while without any results to talk over a little debt," police quoted the letter.

"You seem to be a pretty hard man to get at—but not for long.

"You sent me back to prison for something I did not know anything about. I served two years and one month, which amounts to 108 weeks.

"I expect to collect $100 for every week I served in that damnable prison, which amounts to $10,800.

"This debt must be settled immediately, or it's either my life or yours. It's immaterial to me which way you care to settle this debt. Just say the word."

A "P. S." stated

"Will call you over phone for arrangements."

Police said Schiavone admitted authorship of the letter and revealed that he had loitered for three months around Lapham's office, but without success in interviewing him

Miss Irene Lovejoy, stenographer and Mrs. Esther White, telephone operator, in the brokerage office, identified Schiavone at police headquarters as the youth who left the letter.

Questioned as to his reference in the letter about "your life or mine" Schiavone said it spoke for itself. Asked if he had been armed he smiled and declared he carried no gun but that there were other ways. He declared that Lapham could tell why he sought money from him.

BABY'S LIFE IN BALANCE

Little Mary de Frazio, 20 months old, struggling for breath at Central Hospital, Somerville, while her aunt, Lucy de Carolis, looks on apprehensively. FIREMEN FIGHT TO SAVE BABY

Firemen, policemen and doctors using oxygen, an inhalator and every resource of medical science fought for the life of 20-months-old Mary De Fazio, victim of pneumonia, in Somerville today.

Her condition became critical at her home, 20 Prospect st., this morning, and Capt. James F. Ward and crew of Engine 1 responded to an emergency call with two small tanks of oxygen. These were used up.

A physician ordered the baby to Central Hospital and it was taken there in a police ambulance while Patrolmen William Donovan and William Burnett applied inhalator and oxygen en route. At the hospital the policemen remained to aid doctors with the oxygen treatment.

2 DOCTORS HELD IN AUTO FRAUD

Charged with conspiracy to [illegible] Arthur M. Simmons of Commonwealth ave., [illegible] and Dr. Samuel I. Marnoy of Commonwealth ave., Back Bay, pleaded [illegible] before Judge Thomas [illegible] Hammond in Middlesex Criminal Court. Each was released in bonds of [illegible]

The physicians were arrested by State Detective Edward P O'Neill. Both waived the reading of indictments which charged conspiracy to steal the property of insurance companies.

Assistant Dist.-Atty. Frederic A. Crafts said the arrest of the physicians was in connection with the investigation of an alleged fake accident ring. The indictments were returned last month, following the appearance before the grand jury of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Zega of Somerville.

SCANTY ENGLISH FREES VAGRANT

If Steve Vukonis can avoid learning English, he'll probably never remain long in trouble—at least with the courts.

Vukonis, who is 50, so far as can be determined, and who is a native of Austria, was discharged in Newton court when no interpreter could be found. He had been arrested on a charge of vagrancy

Less than 12 hours later—in Quincy—he was also arrested as a vagrant, but Quincy police also freed him today when they were unable to learn anything from him except that he had come from Ohio and was on his way to Baltimore

OVERALL THUGS ROB 2 STORES

A trio of [illegible] held up two chain stores of the same company in broad daylight in Roxbury and South Boston today

Garbed in new blue overalls and flashing nickel-plated revolvers they held up Arthur O'Keefe manager of the chain store at 855 Albany st., Roxbury. Two of them accosted him when he was alone in the store and escaped with $15 in a car driven by the third man. O'Keefe has been held up three times before in the same store.

In South Boston the same robbers entered the store at 305 Third st., took $10 from the cash register and $15 from Frank [illegible]

Ely Scoffs at Damage to Autos by Wild Deer

He vetoed a resolve that would allow $392.90 to six persons, whose claims ranged from $15 to $95.75.

"I question the wisdom of an assumption of liability for such claims and there is no legal foundation for it," Ely's veto message read.

"It would be equally advisable to compensate the traveler whose auto is damaged by lightning or whose ignition is put out of commission by rain.

"The amounts indicate lack of serious damage and I feel it would be establishing a dangerous precedent to allow these claims."

Enthralling Story of Modern Married Life

Nevis Surprises Her Husband With Olive When He Fails to Arrive for Dinner

Carter said suddenly, "I'd like to see you again, Nevis Lancaster. May I?"

What Has Gone Before

Nevis and Bill Lancaster, young newlyweds, leave the little Pennsylvania town where they were raised and go to New York. They lease a small apartment and Bill becomes a bond salesman. As he succeeds they take a house and entertain beyond their means to make an impression. Then Bill meets the flirtatious Olive Blanchard, who makes no secret of her designs on him. When Nevis suggests a vacation Bill tells her he has been invited to a stag fishing trip by Mr Bartlett, a prospective client. Nevis, furious, asks him if it was business which accounted for his attentions of Mrs Bartlett at a party. They have their first quarrel.

Now Go On With the Story

NEVIS, LISTENING to [illegible] about the coming baby [illegible] home and reporting to B[illegible] [illegible] she knew.

Della's awfully happy about the baby, Bill."

"Sure. She lets everyone know it. Maybe it's defense mechanism," explained Bill carelessly.

"Bill Lancaster, you never thought that all up by yourself! You don't know a defense mechanism from—a conditional behavior. Olive's been talking to you again."

He [illegible] grace to [illegible] she [illegible]

She does eat that stuff up," he admitted, "and half the time I don't know what she's raving about. I do understand this, a little, though. I mean, in plain English, maybe Della's sore or something and is trying to bluff."

"I don't think so," Nevis told him, sobering. "She and Mort are as tickled as a couple of kids with a new toy."

"Better them than us," said Bill lightly. And stopped at the look on Nevis' face. He said:

"You wouldn't, Nevis? But it would gum things up for us, darling. We have to be free a while longer, till we get a good solid stake behind us. Besides I couldn't spare you. I want you with me." His arms went around her, "And I'd be so damned scared!" he said, low.

SHE LOVED HIM FOR IT

In a way that was the sweetest thing he had ever said to her. She loved him for it.

One night in October Bill telephoned that he had been late in getting off and that he wouldn't be home for dinner

"We haven't anyone coming or a date or anything?" he asked, anxiously.

"No, how late will you be, Bill?"

"Not very. I'll get a bite along the way," he told her

Nevis wandered out into the [illegible] try. She had ordered a nice dinner, all the things Bill liked. A man's meal totally uninspired and perfectly grand according to Bill's standards. The soup he liked—[illegible] sputter [illegible] broiled [illegible] Worcestershire [illegible] French fried potatoes, the peas in cream, the deep-dish apple pie and coffee.

"That's what I call a meal!" Bill would say on the occasions it was served him

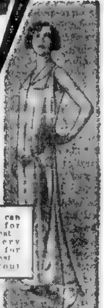
Good Habits that Are also BAD!

The exercise advised as desirable for the bodily machinery as a whole may sometimes prove fatal to the exerciser



As much can be said for or against being very thin as for or against being stout

The Danger in Some Beneficial Things Is an Example of Nature's Perplexing Contradictions about the Human Body

THE fact that there is often a little bit of bad in some of the so-called good habits seems rather odd. Yet it's true. And it's so only because few generalizations are true. One particular habit cannot possibly benefit all—or vice versa. Individuals who choose habits that suit their particular needs are following the proper course.

The advisability of such action is apparent to anyone who pauses to consider the harm in some health habits that many people accept and follow. All these people consider only the benefits of these habits and ignore the harm.

Do you want to know the danger in some health habits generally accepted as beneficial to the human body? This interesting topic is explained in detail in an unusual and enlightening article appearing in The American Weekly—next Sunday. Be sure to look for it!

thought you'd be alone. You didn't say anything.

WEARING A PLEATED SKIRT

[illegible] of soft brown tweed and an [illegible] pullover, a cardigan and a little brown beret. She was one of the few women who could wear berets. Her dark curls perked from under it, her face was rosy from her walk. Her hose were [illegible] and her shoes were tan and brown [illegible] skin. "You look like a million," said Della. "Dollars, not years. Years, about 11."

[illegible] "This," said Mort dramatically, "is Harry Carter—the architect who's doing the Waterford house. He has a reputation of building his houses around the ladies who occupy them. And this," said Mort, still dramatic, "is Mrs. Bill Lancaster of our younger married set—and a very nice girl, too."

Nevis regarded Harry Carter with interest. She had heard a lot about him. He was a [illegible] architect of excellent family and originally very little money. He had remedied that [illegible] as promptly as possible [illegible] of the head of the firm [illegible] after returning from the Beaux Arts he had been employed as a draftsman in New [illegible] when he wanted [illegible] great office building. He was original and daring and [illegible] personally irresistible. Nevis had heard about him a good deal. But had never happened to meet him.

HE LOOKED AT NEVIS

"He's staying on with us," said Della, "for a few days, to see how his minions carried out his plans for Fluff's house. It's grand, Nevis. You haven't seen it yet, have you? We'll get Harry to take us over in the morning."

[illegible] He looked at Nevis. He said [illegible] I'd like to do a house for you. [illegible] "We have one. Not that it's ours really. But it's a cut [illegible]"

"The Manning house," Mort explained, pouring the liqueur into the squat silver glasses.

"I remember it. Charming," said Carter, "but I could conceive of a more appropriate setting."

They talked and laughed for half an hour or so, settled finally to contract on the sun porch, the soft lights overhead glowing down on the cards. Nevis cut Carter. He was a pleasant partner, an almost [illegible] one.

It was [illegible] [illegible] a man's voice, "Well, here we are. I promised I wouldn't break your neck, didn't I?"

INTENT ON GAME

The men behind her were intent on the game. But Della had her [illegible] She looked up quickly and away again but not quickly enough [illegible] Nevis said casually, "That's Bill. He picked Olive up in town. Shall I get them over?"

There was appeal in her eyes [illegible] she didn't know it. Della [illegible] nodded and regarded her [illegible] again.

Nevis stepped out of the French windows onto the brick [illegible] The Beauchard property was [illegible] the lawn on that side ran [illegible] the Hunt [illegible] house.

"Hello—" called Nevis [illegible] "Bill? Olive? I'm at Della's. Come on over."

[illegible] Are they whispering? [illegible] "How silly, as if I could hear it!" But she [illegible] to herself that she had heard.

[illegible] Be with you in half a jiff."

"Cut in?" asked Mort [illegible] Carter.

They did so. There were easy explanations. "Phoned Bill I was stuck in town. He brought me down, like an angel. But it was so late we stopped for dinner," said Olive, and then, audaciously, "You don't mind, do you, Nevis darling? Even if I am in love with your husband?"

MORE ATTENTIVE

"No, I don't mind," said Nevis, "and I wish you'd do it often. It makes him a lot more attentive to me when he has something on his conscience."

Laughter. The rattle of glasses, the clink of ice. Smoke. Nevis and Carter had cut out. He said "Let's go out on the terrace . . . there should be a hunter's moon."

There was. They stood there a moment leaning on the low ivy-covered wall to which one descended by a series of low flat steps. Nevis looked up at the quiet heavens. She thought "Why am I so thick about this? He didn't lie. He just didn't tell me. Why didn't he tell me? Why didn't he say 'Olive's with me; we'll have dinner.'"

Carter flung away his cigarette. He bulked beside her, tall in the impeccable dinner clothes. He said suddenly: "I'd like to see you again, Nevis Lancaster. May I?"

That had been the beginning: a hunter's moon, a heartache and an attractive man who said: "I'd like to see you again, Nevis Lancaster. May I?"

NEVIS LAUGHED

She had laughed of course. She had answered lightly: "And why not?" and Harry Carter had replied: "Why not, indeed? I'm staying here a few days as Della told you. I have a very strong idea that I'll be at Westlynne often—the last obsequies, you know. A house goes along merrily enough, at first, once your builders fall into line, but the final and finishing touches are what keep an architect on the anxious seat. Waterford's given me an entirely free hand and that's one reason why I'm so keen to have everything go just right."

He had said it with the utmost gravity. Bill had called from the house. [illegible] sandwiches. Bill [illegible] Olive, however, appeared quite untroubled.

Going home Nevis asked: "Why didn't you tell me tonight Olive was with you?" He answered, with guilty innocence: "Didn't I? I thought I did."

She was angry and she was hurt. But something in his absurdity amused her. She laughed aloud. She said, severely: "Bill, you know you didn't! Not a word."

He laughed too, infinitely relieved. She took it all right then. As a matter of fact, he had no intention of concealing from her his trip down to Westlynne, with a dinner stopover and a companion. But Olive had made an issue of it, had urged: "Don't say anything to Nevis, Bill. Oh, I know you think she won't mind. Men are so stupid. That's half their charm. But she will mind. I know women, especially wives. She'll rub it in."

What comes of Nevis' meeting with the young architect? Told interestingly in tomorrow's installment.

Girl to Wed, but Loves Another

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going with a [illegible] girl for two years and I love her. She does not live in this town with me but works here and goes home in the summer. She also has another boy friend from her home town whom she agreed to marry this summer. In the meantime she and I have fallen in love. I am in no position to marry her as I haven't any money nor a good job. She says she has promised the other man, but would [illegible] love me although she is going to keep her promise.

WORRIED AND PUZZLED.

Dear Worried: The idea of promising one man while being in love with another is saddening. Such a girl is not keeping faith with either man or herself. The world is just full of charming girls who will treat you better than that.

Take Care of Your Health When Weather Changes

By Dr. R. S. COPELAND

CHANGING weather conditions of the different seasons have a powerful influence on the comfort and well-being of [illegible]

Dr. Copeland

[illegible] Summer with its high temperature and great humidity plays havoc with many a strong man but there are others who endure the Summer heat with remarkable fortitude. They claim they never feel as well as when the temperature rises into the 80's. The excellent elimination through the skin which accompanies free perspiration is undoubtedly the reason for this happy state.

Then again there is a fairly large class of people who say they never feel well during the cold Winter months. [illegible] when they are exposed to the cold, and very often their discomfort causes them to take refuge in [illegible] rooms. This practice is most harmful and renders suffering acute when they are forced to go into the outer air again.

In Winter heat-producing foods are required. A diet which might [illegible] in warm or temperate weather is insufficient for cold weather.

Heat producing foods are fats, grain foods and sugars. Oatmeal with cream and sugar for breakfast, bacon and eggs and a cup of cocoa instead of tea or coffee make a good start for a cold day.

It's a simple ceremony to perform, requiring only a can of Friend's Beans, a can opener and a frying pan . . . or if you prefer a more elaborate ceremony, take the old bean pot down from the top shelf to warm the beans in — perhaps with a few strips of bacon accross the top.

It's really quite swanky now to put the bean pot right on the table and serve your Friend's Beans from it. What's more, it fosters the illusion that you baked them yourself . . . and a lot of women owe their reputation as cooks to Friend's, who have so ably aided and abetted this little deception. The most enviable reputations are achieved by serving Friend's Brown Bread along with the Beans.

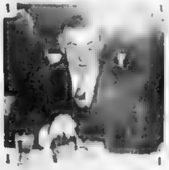
Mayor Curley advocated an increase of [illegible] per cent in the present income tax laws from [illegible] to nearly 2 per cent on personal incomes. Friends and rivals mingled.



First of all I thought it would be best to photograph our own mayor. Here he is, Mayor James M. Curley of Boston, partaking of some of the delicacies served at the luncheon.

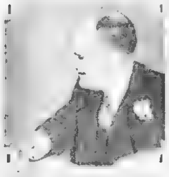
Now here is the president of the Mayors Club. He is Charles Eldridge, and he's a former mayor of Somerville. He presided at the luncheon yesterday.



Here we have Mayor Lawrence Quigley of Chelsea. No, he isn't eating with that pencil; he's just using it to explain the topic he is so busily talking about. (Staff Photos)

AVERAGE CHILD IS NEGLECTED, SAYS EXPERT

Mrs. Piper Also Warns Women Against Pampering Those Suffering From Handicap

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Don't pamper the handicapped child.

Interest yourselves in solving the youth problems of today.

Those and many other bits of advice were given the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs today in its second day sessions at New Ocean House, Swampscott.

WARNS OF NEGLECT

Most of the day was devoted to sectional conferences for those interested in particular branches of work for organized women.

It was Mrs. William S. Piper who warned against pampering of children, reporting as chairman of the child welfare committee.

"Our survey among clubs shows us that so much is being done for the handicapped child that the average child of school age is apt to be neglected," Mrs. Piper reported.

An interesting report by Mrs. Robert [illegible] Cabert of Roxbury, chairman of the law observance and safety committee, revealed that accidents in the home last year were led by falls. Burns, scalds and [illegible] followed in that order, she said.

Mrs. Cabert added that her committee plans a year's campaign to [illegible] accidents in the home.

TAKES PARENTS TO TASK

Mrs. Hazel Hammond Albertson of W[illegible], chairman of the committee for the handicapped, said the principal trouble of her committee was the re-building of [illegible] spirits rather than actual [illegible].

"It is well for us to realize that a blind and crippled spirit is a worse affliction from the standpoint of living than blindness of the eye," she said.

Mrs. Ambrose H. Diehl of New York took parents to task for their [illegible] of bridge while their children are sent to the movie.

SHIRKING THEIR JOBS

Mrs. Diehl said that an increasing group of mothers were shirking their responsibility and using the theaters as playgrounds for their sons and daughters.

Continuing she said:

"When children go wrong, it is so easy to place the blame on the movies—to say it is the fault of the moving pictures and the present-day life reflected on the screen when in reality it is the failure of parents to guide and influence their young properly."

Mrs. Diehl believes that children make good critics.

"They know when a picture is rotten or not and are quick to say so," she told the 2000 club women.

TAKES FLING AT FANATICS

Fanatical reformers were not so accurate in their blame, Mrs. Diehl pointed out, when they censured the pictures so severely.

"When, in reality," she continued, "we try to tell a commercial industry what to do and then refuse to co-operate. We tell exhibitors we want this and that for picture entertainment and we don't stand behind our own dictates."

Mrs. Diehl maintained that very often pre-viewers found and read into the pictures "dirt" that really didn't exist and that much is found the matter with films when youngsters don't even take cognizance of it at all.

HEIRESS HOME FROM IRELAND

Just in time to celebrate her [illegible] wedding anniversary, Mrs. Michael J. O'Donoghue arrived home today—finishing a visit to Ireland after a [illegible]-year absence.

Mrs. O'Donoghue, whose home is at 81 Holmes ave., Dorchester, came back to Boston aboard the Hamburg-American liner St. Louis after claiming the [illegible] left her by her [illegible], Mrs. Frances Daver [illegible]. The mother died [illegible] September.

A quarter century ago Mrs. O'Donoghue was married and tonight she will celebrate her anniversary at her home.

Woman Punched in Jaw as Xmas Gift

Because of an argument over attention he was paying to another girl, the belle of the town, George E. Silva, Gloucester policeman, gave his wife a Christmas present of a punch in the face which loosened her teeth, the wife, Mrs. Laura B. Silva, 26, testified in Salem court today. She seeks a divorce on grounds of cruelty. The case was taken under advisement.

NEW YORK, MAY 19.—Snapshots at the Pierrette Club . . . Where society met the stage . . . last Saturday night . . . B[illegible] Taylor, brother of Countess Dorothy di Frasso, who was formerly Mrs. Graham White, and is now enamored of Gary Cooper, nervously escorting Lupe Velez . . . an entrancing and coquettish vision . . . and one couldn't but wonder (allowing for the difference in time of Hollywood and here) if Gary at that moment wasn't prancing with the Countess at the Embassy Club, and did he fling a thought Lupe-wards, or did he understand that his ex-love was having a grand time with his lady's brother . . . ? And if that sounds involved, you get the idea . . .

ROZIKA with long earrings and glistening black locks and tanned countenance . . . sitting in a foursome . . . the other couple being Phyllis Haver, once of the movies, and her good-looking husband, Billy Seeman . . .

Such a great gambler is the ex-Mrs. Mortimer Davis . . . and such a SUCCESSFUL one at baccarat and all games of cards that one wonders, according to the old saying, if she can possibly be lucky IN LOVE . . . ?

I saw Rozika win nearly a quarter of a million dollars one night in the Casino at Le Touquet, France . . . accompanied by the then much-enamored multi-millionaire department-store owner, Gordon Selfridge, one of whose daughters is the Countess de Sibour . . .

I have also observed Rozika gambling high, wide and handsome, at Cannes . . . Juan-Les-Pins . . . Monte Carlo . . . Nice . . . and what LUCK that girl has at the tables . . .

"If THIS doesn't take, then I'll be —!" I understand the blushing bride recently exclaimed directly after Mayor Walker had tied the connubial knot between herself and Irving Netcher . . .

But the Braves of 1932 haven't a great amount of ground to make up. They are right in pace-following position within easy striking distance of the lead. Yo[illegible] Olympic material when Harvard and Yale meet at the Stadium on Saturday. Only a busted leg can keep Pen Hal[illegible] Harvard [illegible] the Olympic team. Yale's vaulters are of Olympic timber and so is Karl Warner, the Blue quarter miler, who took Pennsy's vaunted double furlongers into camp and then beat Princeton's pride last Saturday. Karl runs 49 seconds or under every time he starts. Even Ben Eastman, the California sensation, is going to have n[illegible] troubles beating that bird. Hasket Derby's "220" in 21 seconds makes it look as if Uncle Sam would call on him in the Olympic sprints. The Princeton sprinter seems to be improving with every start.

Harvard and Yale appear closely matched. Both were beaten by Princeton, which has an exceptionally strong track squad this season. Hallowell and Record are expected to be the Crimson's big point scorers, but Scarlett of Princeton may lead Record home in the low hurdles. The Princeton flyer equalled the Yale-Princeton meet record last Saturday. It looks as if Harvard had nothing to fear in the distance events. Brothron of Princeton led home Yalensians in both mile and two-mile and finished second in the half. A fortnight ago Hallowell beat Princeton's best at both mile and half-mile. The big Crimson-Blue duel may be decided by the field events.

Tonight, in New York, Gene Venzke and George Spitz will have their first competitive outdoor trials. Spitz is sure of getting up among the clouds, and this humble scribe believes that Venzke will prove just as good over the cinders as over the boards. They're two aces Uncle Sam surely can depend on in the Olympics.

SHERRY FACES STRACK AT ARENA

Jack Conway Picks Sherry to Slam Charley Strack

Jack Conway today tipped the gang that Jack Sherry probably would win from Charley Strack at the Arena tonight.

"Sherry has plenty of reason for calling himself the uncrowned champion," said Jack. "He's the toughest human on two feet."

73 STRIKEOUTS IN 52 FRAMES---'NUFF SAID!

Yes, CHARLIE DEVENS' 73 strikeouts in 52 frames are roaring down the baseball corridor and the big league scouts are taking the cotton out of their ears. He's the best college pitching prospect that has bobbed up in many a day. And coming from deah ol' Hawvahd—eh wot! No wonder the depressed magnates are hot on Charlie's trail. Don't let him get away from Boston, Judge Fuchs and Bob Quinn. Next Saturday Charlie is going to try to give Harvard the first baseball victory it has won over Holy Cross since way back in 1927. Opposing batters flash the S. O. S. whenever Harvard's S. O. KING mounts the mound. (International News Photo.)

Charlie Devens ....
The Harvard Ace ......

Devens Fit Prospect for Big League Ball

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Seventy-three strikeouts in 52 innings—that's the record Charlie Devens, Harvard's willowy right-hander has compiled in major college competition this season!

Back that record up with the fact only 20 hits for 29 bases and 10 runs have been scored against him in six games and you'll see why the big league scouts are so hot on his trail and would give him all kinds of money to sign a professional contract after he graduates in June.

Don't be too sure Devens will not succumb to the professional lure. Depression has changed many things—even Harvard's outlook on professional baseball.

The same Harvard men who 10 years ago would have advised a young graduate to steer clear of professional athletics now say it in no way injures a young fellow's "standing" to go out and haul down the big dough in a clean, red blooded sport like professional baseball.

The money Devens might make in a few short years in professional [illegible] ness. We have a hunch that after June rolls around you'll find Charlie Devens a big leaguer.

Devens Seeks Victory Over Crusaders

Next Saturday Harvard is depending on Devens to give the Crimson the first victory it has won in baseball over Holy Cross since Jack Barbee beat the Purple 9 to 2, at Cambridge, in 1927, and repeated, 4 to 3, in 14 innings, a couple of weeks later. All Devens needs is support. It's up to Harvard to give it to him.

Although Devens held Pennsy to one hit and struck out 10 in Charlie's first 1932 start on April 8, Harvard lost, 2 to 0. Devens only allowed three hits and fanned 11 in the eight innings he worked against Columbia on April 16. The next week he blanked Syracuse 4 to 0, yielding two hits and fanning 14.

Charlie Is Son of Famed Harvard Athlete

On April 30, Charlie whitewashed Penn State, 5 to 0, giving four hits and striking out 13. They fired Devens right back at Pennsy on May 7, and this time Charlie won, 5 to 3, yielding five hits and fanning 10. Last Saturday at Princeton Devens turned back the Tiger, 8 to 1, fanning 15, and running his strikeout total up to 73 in 52 innings.

Devens, a tall, willowy, 6 feet 1 inch, 176 pound athlete is 22 years of age. He lives in Boston and prepared at Groton. Charlie is the son of Arthur L. Devens, '02 "Shube," as the elder Devens was known in his athletic days, played varsity football for Harvard in 1901 and varsity baseball for the Crimson in 1900 and 1901.

Like his father before him Charlie Devens is a versatile athlete. He starred in freshman football for Harvard and in 1929 made the varsity and was one of Harvard's brilliant backfield stars. He played on the Harvard second varsity hockey teams of 1929 and 1930. In mid-season in 1930 Devens broke his leg and was lost to Harvard football. Last year he was ineligible during a greater part of the season, but made up his deficiencies and is in [illegible] scholastic standing. He is trying hard to get his diploma next month.

Maybe Charlie Devens wouldn't look sweet in a Red Sox or Braves uniform! Maybe he wouldn't bolster up any club. Boston needs the local boy. Don't let those pesky Giants outbid yuh, Judge Fuchs and Bob Quinn!

TALKING BAN LIFTED BY N. L.

New York, May 19 (AP) The National Baseball League today announced it has rescinded its much discussed rule prohibiting ball players on the field from speaking to anyone in the stands.

The rule was adopted this year after considerable discussion and a fine of $5 set as the penalty for its infraction. Gabby Street, manager of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, was the only manager of players to be reported and fined.

"The rule proved to be unpopular with public and press," President John Heydler said, "as well as with those engaged in the playing of the game. It is hereby rescinded."

The rule was said to have been passed largely as the result of circulation of a picture taken in Chicago, which showed a prominent ball player signing a baseball for Al Capone. The picture aroused considerable adverse comment.

Husky Pups Win

What the Stars Did

Tom Zachary, Braves—Set the Cardinals down with five hits.

Bill Clark, Dodgers—Didn't allow a batter to reach first for six innings in beating the Pirates 4 to 2.

Gentleman Jack Washburn has lost his book of wrestling etiquette, and the finder will please not return it to him.

Mr. Washburn, will you kindly take your shoe out of my face?

OPEN AT TEPEE TOMORROW IN 2D PLACE

By JOE CASHMAN

There's no major league baseball hereabouts today, but there'll be plenty of the best brand of it starting tomorrow, when our battling Braves return to the Wigwam.

The Warriors are on their way back from St. Louis with a record of seven victories in fourteen games on the road, which is considered a championship gait away from home.

They'll open up against the Phillies at the Tepee in second place, not more than three and possibly one or two games back of the pace-setting Chicago Cubs, depending on the outcome of today's game between the leaders and the Reds in Cincinnati.

And if they show the improvement every club should when playing on its own back yard before friendly audiences, they'll have a great opportunity to grab off a comfortable lead in the race during the next six weeks as they have only seven games to play away between now and June 30 while the Cubs, Reds and Cards, their first division rivals, will be on the road the greater part of the time.

Braves Are Darlings of Boston Fans

Not in a decade has Boston been as excited about a ball club as it is about the Braves today. The local populace actually has visions of a pennant flying here this fall for the first time since 1918, and just as long as the McKechniemen remain contenders, they'll own the town.

The natives have played every rival in the circuit and the only one they don't hold an edge over is Cincinnati. They have taken two out of three from the Cubs, two out of three from the World's Champion Cardinals, five out of six from the Giants, three out of four from the Dodgers, three out of five from the Phils and the lone game played with the Pirates.

It's our personal belief that the Braves are going to keep on confounding their critics by staying in the thick of battle and finishing, if not on top, high enough to put Boston back on the baseball map.

It was a costly triumph, as it robbed them of the services of Marty McManus, who strained a tendon in his right ankle sliding to the plate in the fifth inning and today is confined to the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

However, if the rest of the boys keep hitting like they did yesterday they'll win far more regularly than they have been doing, even with Marty missing.

Led by big Smead Jolley, who made a double and four singles in five times up they hammered five Chicago pitchers for 18 hits and scored in every inning but the second and fourth.

MYERSON NEW MAT CHAMP

The bout ended in the third round when Referee Joe Boston disqualified Germaine for foul tactics. Germaine went after the referee and the two engaged in a battle until the police escorted the grappler to his corner.

Babe Ruth hit his seventh home run of the season in the 10th inning to give the Yankees a 3 to 2 decision over the Indians. The victory was the [illegible] in a row for the New Yorkers and increased their lead in the race to one and a half games.

Babe Ruth

Henry Johnson, [illegible] first start of the season, held the Peoame [illegible] six hits and fanned 12. [illegible] batters [illegible] continued his sensational hitting by getting his fifth home run in the fourth [illegible].

Jimmy Foxx maintained his lead in the home run race by banging out his 10th as the champion Athletics were walloping the Tigers, 8 to 2. Al Simmons and Jimmy Dykes also hit circuit clouts for the Macks, while one of the two runs made off Grove was a four-bagger by White, a new Tiger.

Bill Terry of the Giants remained right on Foxx's heels and in front in the National League home run race by hitting his [illegible] during a seven-run, seven-hit inning [illegible] which gave the Giants a [illegible] victory over the Reds.

The St. Louis Browns [illegible] three in a row over the second-place Senators by scoring [illegible] runs in the eighth to win 11 to 7 after tossing away an early [illegible] lead.

A week ago, the Phils were in third place. Now they are virtually tied with the sixth-place Dodgers and only two games away from the basement.

The Cubs remained 2½ games ahead of our Braves by winning their third straight game from the Phillies, 6 to 4. Chuck Klein came through with his seventh home run in the sixth inning of the battle.

Bill Sherdel, veteran southpaw, who was unconditionally released by the Braves last Monday has been signed by the Cards. Wee Willie pitched for the world champions from 1918 until 1930 when the Braves secured him and Fred Frankhouse in exchange for Burleigh Grimes.

Washburn Slams Kirilenko

Gentleman Jack Too Tough for Matros in Garden Mat Conflict

By JACK CONWAY

Washburn won the first fall in [illegible] and the second in [illegible]. Washburn was escorted to the ring by the usual squad of cops. [illegible] Gentleman Jack smiled happily as the crowd booed and hissed him. From his expression it was apparent he figured cash customers were causing the commotion. And customers mean a payoff.

Washburn started getting tough as soon as he was sent into action by Referee Cyclone Burns. Jack playfully jammed his knee against the Russian's stomach. Just for good fellowship sake.

After some rough battling, the grapplers plunged out of the ring and traded blows while they stood on the floor. A flock of cops acted as officials.

Back in the ring Washburn used what his opponent claimed was a strangle hold. In justice to 'Gentleman' Jack, it should be stated the hold was okay. Washburn had his arm around Kirilenko's mouth. Maybe he didn't approve of the manner in which the Russian grunted.

Gentleman Jack shook up his rival with a head scissors. When Kirilenko got clear he drove a [illegible] to the body which sent Washburn through the ropes.

This style of battle appealed to Washburn. He dropped the Russian three times with right hand punches to the jaw. He then clamped on a [illegible] mare and won [illegible]

PREPARES FOR GO AT MAX'S

Charley Belanger, Canadian light heavyweight champion, who will collide with Joe Knight of Georgia in an Argonne A. A. show at the Arena on Monday night, will finish his training at Max Schmeling's camp at Kingston, N. Y.

Belanger is in the same stable as Schmeling. He is managed by Billy McCarney, the old clothes man of boxing. Billy considers Belanger the best light heavyweight in the world. He feels he will win over the highly touted Knight at the Arena and then go on to matches with Maxie Rosenbloom and George Nichols.

Marty McManus, in Hospital, Wants Glove Returned

Marty McManus is in the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital for a short period with a strained tendon in his right foot. The Red Sox have gone to Philadelphia to open a series with the A's minus their star infielder.

Marty's chief sorrow is not the injury to his foot—it's the loss of his favorite glove. When McManus was carried off the field his glove remained behind and the Sox forgot to take the mitt to the clubhouse after the game.

Marty would be made very happy if the finder would return it to him or send it to Bl Mason, Red Sox secretary.

M'CAFFERTY RENEWS FEUD WITH ADAMS

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

The resumption of the feud between Bernie McCafferty, Holy Cross flier, and Arnold Adams of Bates is expected to be the feature of the 46th New England Intercollegiate, at Brown on Friday and Saturday.

These two speedsters are stand outs in a field of stars and their duel should be sensational. The Purple ace has never been able to gain a verdict over Adams.

TWENTY GRAND IN COMEBACK

Lexington, Ky., May 19 (AP)—The thrilling stretch battles of last year between Twenty Grand, Equipoise and Mate are again in prospect with the announcement Twenty Grand leaves today for the East to re-enter training.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Kentucky Derby winner of 1931 has not raced this year. He was withdrawn from training and sent to Greentree Farm, near here, to recover from an old injury. Today he is being shipped to Belmont Park, apparently fully recovered.

Equipoise, which rivaled Twenty Grand's turf mastery until the C. V. Whitney colt went lame on the eve of the Derby Twenty Grand won, has returned to the turf and won all his starts this year. A. C. MITZI MAYFAIR

This dancing star, discovered by Bobby Connelly, who will stage Boston American-Sunday Advertiser Opportunity Revue. Mitzi had her start in an amateur production.

JOHNNY HINES

Overnight Johnny became a comedy sensation after a theater manager witnessed his performance in a "Home Talent" performance. Enter the contest without delay.

Noted University Musician Is Dead

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 19 (AP)—Dr. Albert Augustus Stanley, musical [illegible] of the University of Michigan School of Music, died early today at his home. He would have been 81 on May 25.

A native of Manville, R. I., Dr. Stanley [illegible] music abroad before coming here in 1888. He also gained distinction as a composer of religious music.

Clip the Coupon, Be a Stage Star!

Bobby Connelly, general stage director for RKO theaters, will not have to worry about insufficient talent for the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser Opportunity Revue, when he comes here to stage it for RKO Keith's, where it will play for a week starting June 18.

[illegible] new [illegible] in this page and send, together with a good photograph of yourself to the OPPORTUNITY CONTEST EDITOR, Boston American and Sunday Advertiser . . . No application will be considered unless a photograph is sent. Neither the Boston American, Sunday Advertiser or RKO Theaters guarantee the return of the photographs.

CHANCE ON BROADWAY

The Boston American and Sunday Advertiser have arranged with RKO to select future stage stars, the first vital movement to replenish the stage with headliners more sorely needed today than ever.

If you want to go upon the stage here is the grand opportunity. Not only will you have a chance to appear at the RKO KEITH'S theater in the revue to be staged by Bobby Connelly, but the door will be opened to Broadway.

From the "Opportunity Revue," acted entirely by local personages there will be selected one or two persons who will be given the opportunity to go to New York, [illegible] expenses paid.

It's the biggest thrill chance of a decade. Put on your best bib and tucker and send your picture to the Boston American, Sunday Advertiser. Also write in as few words as possible exactly what place you think you deserve in the theatrical firmament. Are you a "hoofer," "jokester" or just a hilarious fellow? There is an opening for every form of talent. Remember [illegible]

TRICKS HAVE CHANCE

Do you do card tricks? Can you escape from a tightly locked milk can. Houdini could, and since the death of this famous magician no one has taken his place. Surely there must be an opening for a New Houdini.

The RKO "Opportunity Revue" is probably the most exciting theater event that will be seen in Boston this year. Get in line. Further details may be had at RKO Keith's theater. Watch this newspaper for announcements and developments in this marvelous opportunity plan to develop the potential vaudevillians, tragedians, magicians and maybe a good bicycle act—who can tell?

Practice up your dancing. Practice up your singing. Here is the big chance and don't let it escape.

BIRTH CONTROL BILL OPPOSED BY DOCTORS

Washington, May 19 (AP)—While advocates of birth control were taking advantage of the first opportunity since 1873 to present their views before a House committee, the Senate judiciary committee today heard arguments opposing [illegible]

Testifying on the Hatfield bill to permit dissemination of contraceptive information by physicians, Dr. William Gerry Morgan, past president of the American Medical Association, said the legislation was dangerous, that all contraceptive methods have more or less harmful effect, and that there is no foundation for the charge that doctors are handicapped in dispensing advice to mothers suffering from physical infirmity.

OPPOSES MEASURE

"And God forbid that they should desire to offer it to any others," he added.

Dr. Morgan said he did not believe the medical profession as a whole favored any such legislation, observing that the Medical Association last week refused to endorse this or any other legislation for the same purpose.

Dr. John A. Ryan, economist and social worker, said:

"Advocacy of birth prevention as a remedy for poverty diverts attention from measures of economic and social justice. The propaganda for birth prevention helps to continue a cruel injustice to the working classes."

CAUSING HARM

He argued that the present decline in birth rate already was having harmful effects on this country and that the increase in birth prevention will bring the population to a stationary level even before the 1960-1970 period, at which this is now due.

In addition to economic arguments, however, Dr. Ryan said, "My fundamental objection to this practice is based upon the fact that it is intrinsically and everlastingly immoral."

Speaking, she said, in behalf of 25,000,000 women of child-bearing age, Mrs. Margaret Sanger, a veteran fighter for her cause, urged Congress to approve a birth control bill.

She appeared before the House committee in behalf of the Hancock bill which would permit dissemination of birth control information by licensed medical sources.

"Forty-seven states permit physicians to give contraceptive advice, but while they can advise fully, they must 'bootleg' their supplies," Mrs. Sanger said.

HERRIOT FAVORS CUT IN ARMS

Paris, May 19 (AP)—Edouard Herriot, who probably will direct the new French government either as premier or foreign minister, gave an inkling of the external policy he will pursue by unequivocally approving today a statement by Sen. Joseph Paul-Boncour that France's program remains national security, arbitration and disarmament, in the order named.

M. Herriot indorsed the Paul-Boncour suggestion that France study the question of making some reduction in armaments as a step toward disarmament thereby showing the sincerity of the French attitude toward Germany.

On the question of reparations M. Herriot declared himself for the [illegible] doctrine which is: 1—Maintain European solidarity; 2—Permit no rupture in the equilibrium between credits and debts at the expense of the French taxpayer.

PETITION

TO THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES:

We, the undersigned citizens, believing that a Prosperity Loan bond issue of $5,000,000,000 for needed public works is the only economical, sound and certain relief for the unemployment problem, the only sure and quick way to relieve the business depression, and avoid greater suffering throughout the nation in this crisis, do hereby petition the Congress to enact the necessary legislation immediately.

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

Hollywood, May 19—He was one of those fast workers, and without the formality of an introduction, went up to a little movie extra and asked her if she'd like to take an auto ride with him after they got through work.

"Sir," she said, indignantly, "I am a lady."

"I know it," he replied. "If I wanted a man, I'd go home and get my brother."

Excuse It Please

To the Tuesday Nite Club's formal Terpsichorean event At Longwood Towers . . . We just missed Somerville's Mayor John J. Murphy and Charles F. Hurley speeching their happiness to attend . . . They hustled away and nary a step did they cavort . . . Arthur F. Grenier introduces us to 'My girl, Mildred Queenan' of East Boston . . . A four-year romance . . . A four-year romance And she still wears Art's orchids . . . The tallest of 'em, lanky Jimmy Donovan, forelocks tumbled o'er his brow—the American's Cambridge correspondent—makes sweet speeches and dances with a Cambridge Dancing Daughter, Helen Carey . . . What's that whispering we heard about the Somerville couple, Catherine Malloy and Arthur Silver, shushing up their engagement? . . . And Sweethearts Two were Phillip Weis and Dorothy McGowan, his flamy favorite (here from Worcester for the dance) and one glance convinced that they were about to name the day for their altar-dashing . . . William Duncan Kane is a deadringer for Hal Le Roy . . . And what Andrew J. O'Connor and Framingham's (red taffeta be-ruffled) Vera Alkonis don't know about romancing and Peabody stepping there just isn't . . . Our pick for Belle of the Ball was Dorchester's blonde Katherine Kelley . . . With Rose O'Connor a close second . . . And the dance music was so speedy that we enjoyed our first two-step since our every-Saturday afternoon dancing school days!

All Notables of Industry in Parade

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

The Big Parade will soon be on—the biggest parade in all the screen colony's history. The whole industry so far as the Southern California end goes, is interested—stars grown-up and Wampas baby stars, producers, directors, the rank and file are grooming for the coming grand show. This will be a mammoth pageant, news of which [illegible] us today from the Coast. Its details are in the hands of leaders in the Hollywood studios, and the promise is that it will be a [illegible] enterprise [illegible] any feature of the kind in movie history.

• • •

The pageant is being arranged in connection with the Olympic games. It is by no means planned [illegible] show off for the industry, [illegible] as a magnificent entertainment for the many thousands of visitors. Instead of their having to [illegible] this or that [illegible] favorite in the highways and byways, the players will be paraded before them in a [illegible] spectacular fashion. Louis B. Mayer is a member of the Olympic commission. In addition to his studio activities as a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer executive [illegible] a bee in behalf of [illegible] connected with the [illegible] on the civic end. Mr. Mayer was selected as an outstanding citizen of the State, always ready to give of his time to public causes.

• • •

In planning the pageant a chief figure has been Conrad Nagel, not only famous as actor but a leader in anything and everything for the benefit of the industry and its people.

It will be an electrical pageant, Mr. Nagel informs us. The floats will be built on trucks, and each truck will carry its own generator. The night will be turned into day, there will be so many lights.

"Not only the present day actors, but old timers will be in the pageant. There will be a polo game, with film players participating. Doug Fairbanks will be another feature, the stars and the baby stars will be introduced to the vast audiences. It is probable that Henry B. Walthall will appear on a white horse, just as he appeared in D. W. Griffith's 'The Birth of a Nation.'

• • •

"Overhead a big blimp will release a large American flag, and the music will be rendered by 1000 or more musicians, under Harold Roberts, Trojan Band director.

"These are but a few of the features; others will be perfected.

"Best of all, the proceeds will go into a most worthy cause, our relief fund to aid the unemployed within the industry. We have spent a great deal in this work, and the pageant should prove a splendid boost to the funds that are needed to carry on."

FIGHT FOR LESS WASTE, MORE EMPLOYMENT

By B. C. FORBES

WE SIMPLY CANNOT [illegible] extravagant government. [illegible] made. While we had [illegible] spend [illegible] lessly.

Expenses Increased Despite Deficit

Total expenditures [illegible] ments, commissions, bureaus, etc., in the fiscal year 1927 were $1,964,000,000.

This increase [illegible]

Increase of 32 Per Cent Since 1929

As compared with the boom fiscal year of 1929, governmental expenditures, exclusive of interest and sinking fund payments, have increased [illegible] that during this same [illegible] the National Industrial Conference Board [illegible] of [illegible] stocks on the New York Stock Exchange have decreased [illegible] 60 per cent, wholesale commodity prices have [illegible] 29 per [illegible] has decreased [illegible] per cent and the average weekly earnings in manufacturing industries [illegible] decreased [illegible] 29½ per cent.

Needless Government Functions

President Whitefoord R. Cole of the Louisville & Nashville railroad last evening drew attention to these startling facts. He showed [illegible] how local tax expenditures have multiplied still faster. Mr. Cole aptly added:

> "I have never had any satisfactory explanation offered of why agencies of the United States government should assume the burden of advising American citizens how to build their homes, how to furnish them how to sleep, how to put up preserves, how to hang curtains and how to make dresses for children."

Mr. [illegible] "liquidate the high cost of government."

H[illegible] cessive [illegible] and me is emphasized by Henry L. Doherty [illegible] government and taxation. He says:

> "Tax exempt securities are still selling at such high interest rates that even our poorest classes might be benefited at this time by depending entirely on a sales tax, thus avoiding a long period of liquidation of business securities. As almost every State and political division wants and must have more money, this reservoir of tax exempt securities may be so huge that heavy income taxes will practically make money unprocurable for industrial concerns. High grade tax exempt bonds have in some instances been sold on a six per cent basis.
> "If an investor must pay a combined federal and State income tax of as much as 66 2-3 per cent as against purchasing 6 per cent tax exempt bonds, he would be compelled to get a return of 18 per cent on an industrial bond to be as well off.
>
> "A sales tax on everything would not be as harmful to the very people the political element are pretending to protect as will be the bad effects from the proposed income tax of the present magnitude. The people who spend most and would pay most on sales tax can largely escape all taxation by investing in tax exempt bonds."

Wealthy Men Wary

Wealthy [illegible] M. Schwab, there are still wealthy [illegible] America—should be encouraged, not discouraged [illegible] money into enterprises employing labor. How can [illegible] putting their capital into business [illegible] and state governments take from them more than [illegible] profits earned, when this two-thirds levy can be [illegible] investing the same capital in tax free bonds?

Providing Jobs First Duty

Every [illegible] possible for our [illegible] million unemployed to return to work. That is the biggest [illegible] economic and social [illegible] that is [illegible] which every thought and effort [illegible]

Our national slogan should be, "Less waste, more employment."

That even the more daring shorts are adopting a cautious attitude. Brokers supporting this view are calling attention to the sudden [illegible] of liquidating pressure. They feel the withdrawal of necessitous sellers can only be predicated on the belief some important constructive event is in the offing.

Imitation

[illegible] be the sincerest form of flattery it is well for the imitator to weigh the effects of such action on his own [illegible]

[illegible] been a gradually increasing [illegible] those who desire the freeing of the [illegible] form of inflation is not performing as Englishmen expected.

In brief, all variable prices were expected to boom. They did for a while. However, they have returned close to, or below [illegible] September. At the same time the cost of living is about 1 per cent higher [illegible] the same. Abandonment of gold would presumably have the same effect in this country. It is hard to see what the average American would gain outside of a theoretical case in debts [illegible]

Briefs

[illegible] of currency [illegible] as the debts due from outsiders [illegible] living in the country whose money purchasing power is lowered. [illegible] England gained a decided edge in the competitive markets of the [illegible] of other monies . . . Yet English [illegible]

[illegible] terms of sterling, stood at approximately 97.5 on September 18, rose to 117 by February 21 and by the last week of April had dropped [illegible] This is only a net gain of 6.5 points . . . Stock prices measured by 267 variable values [illegible] September [illegible] loss of 7 index points.

CALLS BOSTON BIG CENTER OF CONVENTIONS

By FRANK H. MELOON

Calling at the Boston Chamber of Commerce, we found President Frederic S. Snyder had just left [illegible] so we dropped him a few lines about the rise of Boston as a convention center and the "tourist" money brought to this city. President Snyder replies:

Frederic S. Snyder

"You are, I think, quite right regarding Boston as a convention center. Its historical attractions are large. Its environment with respect to seashore attractions is very great, and also very convenient.

"Its hotels are numerous, many of them new; and the accomodations which convention visitors can secure are altogether excellent. Rates are reasonable. The Boston Hotel Association is doing an excellent work in securing high grade cooperative service at reasonable rates.

"All this, taken in conjunction with our favorable summer climate, renders Boston quite ideal as a convention center."

Strength of Steel Furnishes Surprise

Strength of U. S. Steel through most of today's session surprised many in view of the lack of cheer in the statements of the industry's leaders at the meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute. The rise in steel prices was seen as a reason in that it brought about some short covering.

CHART READERS FIND IT HARD TO FORECAST

New York, May 19 (AP)—The Oracle of Delphi has its counterpart in Wall Street today in the form of chart readers who seek to [illegible] the probable future [illegible] what has happened in the past.

But the chart readers [illegible] have [illegible] Most of them pin-marked the turn in receding business for [illegible] others in the early part of this year.

But so far their pins haven't held. The down-trend has gone much farther than most had judged. Only two major recessions, those ending in 1885 and 1904, ran longer than the present one.

The seasoned chart reader, whether he tries to forecast security prices or seeks to compute the trend of business, computes figures on [illegible] and [illegible] in an effort to figure out what [illegible] happen [illegible]

The market isn't getting a break in the news, which explains any decline as much as any other factor. While few expected the Senate to pass the beer bill, its defeat is likely to accentuate the gloom by adding to the failure of Washington to provide anything really constructive so far. Fundamentally no reason as yet for buying stocks, so wait and see.

Johns Manville

Strength in Johns Manville was attributed to settling of the building strike . . . Some buying also has come in on the belief the company will be one to benefit from any large scale governmental building program which would follow [illegible] bond [illegible]

Action of the utilities suggests the renewal of liquidation and the possibility that someone new is being taken over the hurdles.

RADIO ODDS AND ENDS

By N. F. T.

Another spotlight beam bathes Guy Lombardo today as a result of something splendid he has been responsible for. He will undoubtedly be much surprised to read about it here.

* * *

SWIFT SHIFTING

Last Monday night Royal Canadians' music, directed by Lombardo, went out over WNAC microphones in Boston, sent across the U. S. to a far flung Columbia Broadcasting System network. In between his Metropolitan Theater showings the maestro and his men moved fast to and from Hotel Buckminster studios of The Yankee Network. There he found [illegible] in charge [illegible] "mikes" and getting his program under way was Leary's job. Everything happened without a hitch in record time. Control Operator Bob Wolfe handled the volume and lines. Out went what has become widely termed the "sweetest music this side of heaven." Sweet it was.

* * *

GRATEFUL GUY

Highly pleased with the manner in which [illegible] staff people attended to everything, Guy Lombardo wrote a letter to John Shepard [illegible] down to those he named [illegible] and grab glory for such an act. Indirectly, it all came to light, whereupon his communication was [illegible]

How the following [illegible] Leary and Robert Wolfe are [illegible] Promptly [illegible] on having them on [illegible] staff. Wasn't that something to say? [illegible] Guy Lombardo 10 minutes and a two cent stamp.

AZURE AIRINGS

Louis Dean, he who announces for Stoopnagle and Bud, has ceased saying "prespiration" and now calls it "perspiration." What a ton of fan mail must be headed Ben Bernie way after his limerick suggestion Tuesday eve. Mayor Walker of New York is again mentioned prominently for that proposed radio Czar job [illegible] the expense of copyright owners [illegible] the spot where you now read a prediction concerning Mr. Groucho Marx being before long made a member of America's great "microphone fraternity." . . . Yes, the current zippy Ziegfeld Radio Follies drops the curtain very shortly. . . . Along about August, according to persistent whisperings, a well-known person, referred to as George M. Cohan, is due to do his Yankee Doodle business to the tune of $5000 per radio program. There'll be some extra emphasis on the DANDY every time he doodles—eh? In Rumania all air advertising is sold by the word, a system well understood after looking over just a few choice Rumanian words.

PRICE CHANGES ONLY NARROW IN WALL ST.

New York, May 19—Most price changes were over only a narrow range in today's trading on the New York Stock Exchange. Dullness continued to rule the market, with prices maintaining a fairly good undertone.

Tobaccos and utilities, along with a few miscellaneous issues, had a period of heaviness in the morning, but the list recovered substantially after midday. The market was so sluggish, however, that price movements were not regarded as of much significance.

NET CHANGES MODERATE

Stocks were steady in the final dealings. Numerous leaders, including U. S. Steel, Atchison, American Can, American Telephone, New York Central, International Harvester and Standard Oil of New Jersey, showed net gains of a fraction to a point.

Tobaccos, however, sagged and several utilities drooped moderately. Loew's lost more than a point. Trading was dul and total sales approximated only 600,000 shares.

Charles M. Schwab's analysis of the steel situation before the American Iron and Steel Institute, in which he pointed out that the five leading companies fell about $25,000,000 short of earning bond interest and other charges in the first quarter, was rather gloomy. But he pointed out that companies have substantial business on their books which await only the necessary financing.

This led to the hope that once the credit expansion program of the reserve system takes effect, this basic industry may be one of the first to reflect a more normal functioning of credit machinery.

BEAR RULE IGNORED

Announcement that the stock exchange had requested members to stiffen margin requirements on short sales was without influence. Resumption of the stock market inquiry in Washington and defeat of the beer bill in the Senate yesterday were restraining influences and restricted activity.

Rail stocks were sluggish following overnight news that the Southern Pacific dividend had been officially omitted and the passing of the Atlantic Coast Line payment today. The group met support on the subsequent sell-off and come back when the market improved.

Indications that the reserve authorities may slow up their open market purchases of government securities for a time, while they concentrate on getting member banks to put the $250,000,000 of excess reserves to work which have already been piled up, were not regarded in banking quarters as indicating any fundamental change in the program.

BOSTON WOOL BUYING LARGE

R. G. Dun & Co's Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston that warmer weather has stimulated the interest in lightweight wearing apparel. Moderately heavy receipts of wool are reported in Boston for the week, and local firms have purchased about 3,000,000 pounds of Western wool at 9½ cents, the lowest price paid in 38 years. It is expected that before long the woolen mills will be obliged to replenish their stock.

Automobile registrations for the first five months of the year show a reduction of 8 per cent, when compared with those for the same months of 1931. A considerable increase during the current week has taken place on account of the registrations of one of the lower-priced models, just coming into production.

During the week there has been a slight increase in the demand for the staple lines of cotton goods and print cloth advanced ⅛ of a cent from recent low. A fair number of orders are being received for all counts of cotton yarn.

Shoe factories are operating at about the same rate as a year ago, and are now preparing for new runs which necessitates somewhat more active purchasing of leather. The hide market has slowed down after considerable activity.

$4,000,000 State Loan Award Made

State Treasurer Hurley awarded $4,000,000 Commonwealth of Massachusetts revenue loan dated May 24 and due October 25, on an interest to follow, covering 154 days on a 360-day yearly basis, to Salomon Bros. & Hutzler at 1.29 per cent plus $37 premium.

Other bidders were: Shawmut Corporation, 1.29 per cent; Bankers Trust Company of New York, 1.39 per cent, plus $27; First National Bank of Boston, 1.40 per cent, plus $62, and Chase Harris Forbes Corporation, 1.44 per cent, plus $17.

Tri-Continental Takes Over Trust

Tri-Continental Corporation has acquired assets of Investors Equity, Inc., valued at approximately $5,500,000 and assumed $5,128,900 of 5 per cent debentures of the latter company. After giving effect to this transaction, the total of cash, acceptances, short-term notes and similar items held by Tri-Continental is approximately $12,000,000.

Big Margin Required From Bear Traders

New York, May 19 (AP)—Reports current for several days that the New York Stock Exchange was tightening up its restrictions on short selling by requiring members to demand higher margins against short accounts were confirmed in authoritative quarters today.

While no formal announcement was made by the exchange, it was learned that every member firm handling speculative accounts was advised by the business conduct committee that it must demand and maintain a margin of 10 points a share on all short accounts regardless of price of the stock.

Moreover, the members were ordered to compute such margin separately in the case of a customer having both a long and short position. Under this ruling an excess margin in a long account cannot be used as margin against a short position.

Interests close to the exchange described the ruling as an "interpretation of the position taken by the exchange on short selling last fall." In some brokerage circles, however, the exchange's pronouncement was regarded as a far more drastic move to discourage bear selling than any of the warnings and orders issued previously on this much-discussed phase of stock exchange operations.

N. E. Summer Resorts Get Improved Rail Service

Philadelphia, May 19—New and improved service to New England summer resorts will be provided by the Pennsylvania Railroad this year with the inauguration of the Bar Harbor Express tomorrow, it was announced today.

When this famous New England resort train makes its first run of the present season it will be operated on a much faster schedule than in former years. Leaving Washington at noon vacationists will arrive in Bar Harbor at 9:25 o'clock (DST) the next morning, three hours earlier than on previous schedules.

The train will terminate this year at Ellsworth, Me., where passengers will make an automobile bus connection for Bar Harbor instead of using the Mt. Desert ferry route.

A new train, the Waterville Express, will be added to the fleet of high-speed New England trains on June 14. It will run to Portland, Me., and intermediate points beyond as far as Waterville, Me. It will also carry through cars from Washington and Philadelphia to Rockland Me. and Plymouth, N. H.

Both the Bar Harbor Express, and the Waterville Express, will be operated during the New England resort season four days each week, on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

On the return trip, the Bar Harbor Express will leave at 4:40 P. M., (DST), one hour and 10 minutes later than in previous years. The Waterville Express, southbound, will terminate at Pennsylvania Station, New York, with the Philadelphia and Washing cars being carried on the southbound Bar Harbor train.

Investors Dividend Action Postponed

New York, May 19—Directors of General American Investors, Inc., postponed action on the preferred dividend pending action by stockholders at special meeting June 6 to vote on proposal to change the preferred from 6 per cent cumulative, $100 par, to no par $6 preferred, with stated value of $50 a share. Directors will meet again June 8. Dividend ordinarily is payable July 1.

BOSTON STOCKS MOVE IOWER

Share prices were moved downward in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange after starting the session at a moderately higher level. Edison Electric was an early feature, advancing 3 points but this gain was wiped out later in the day.

New England Telephone was around a point higher while American Telephone was a major fraction higher. New lows for the year were set by Amoskeag, Boston & Maine prior preferred, Eastern Gas & Fuel prior preferred and Employers Group.

New Haven and Pennsylvania were steady around previous closing levels. Atchison eased a minor fraction. Boston & Maine B stamped added ⅝. Losses of moderate proportions were shown for Anaconda, Shawmut Association and United Fruit.

Curb Market Dull, Oil Shares Firm

New York, May 19—Further selling in utilities gave the curb market a lower trend today, although trading was dull.

Oils again maintained a firm tone and some issues in that group were fairly active. Power and light holding company shares gave ground rather easily, especially when Electric Bond & Share sagged to a new minimum, though the dividend on the new common was kept on the old basis.

Closing Is Firm in Paris Trading

Paris, May 19 (AP)—The better tone in London and the reaching of an accord in the artificial silk situation contributed toward an improvement of prices on the Bourse today which recovered most losses of the past two days, the closing being firm.

$5,000,000 N. Y. Award

Chase National Bank and National City Co. group was awarded the $5,000,000 New York City home and emergency work relief bonds, due 1934 to 1937, on bid of par for 5½s. No re-offering price has been set as yet.

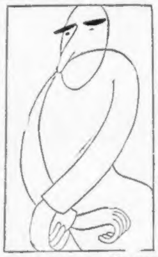
MEN WHO MAKE AMERICA WHAT IT IS TODAY



Friends, shake hands with J. Wilbert Limbergrip, organizer of the Limbergrip Loan Plan for white collar workers. If you have a doctor bill, or a mortgage to meet, the Limbergrip plan is designed to help you. All you need do is deposit twice the amount of the loan, pay a small "get-acquainted fee," and have four ex-Presidents of the United States sign the guarantee. A modest interest, not exceeding 12 per cent, is computed hourly. A new feature makes it possible to reduce the interest 10 per cent after the recipient has reached the age of 65, provided he is completely disabled and has lost the sight of his remaining eye.

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

The Days That Are to Come!

The days that are to come, my friend,
Will be so much alike—
The little swords of sun will stab,
The points of moon will strike.

The night will fall and nervous stars
Will blink and nod and yawn,
Then the gray will spread to spell
Another bitter dawn!

The years that are to come will be Alike . . . do you know why?
Because we closed our hearts to love
And let our senses die!

Juanyta Slivette.

Out of an Envelope

Dear Mr. Sobol (writes A. C. Roessler of the Airplane Stamp News, East Orange, N. J.): That was a fine story you had about Bill MacLaren and Mrs. Hart. I know every word of it is true, too. He was an unusual fellow. When I first met him I asked if he would carry one pound of mail. You see, that's my business—selling souvenir airmail. An envelope that is postmarked and backstamped has on it the official evidence which stamp collectors want so much. We paid thousands of dollars to Byrd, Wilkins, Chamberlain, etc. When we first suggested the $1000 price Lieut. MacLaren said that he would sooner have a navigation instrument. Having dealt with many money-mad adventurers, we suspected a holdup. It came as a shock, then, to find that the instrument would cost only $300. True, we found out later he would have to have an illuminated sextant for night flying, and this came to $600. The whole trip was held up because of this one item.

We supplied the money and do you know, Louis, it was this instrument that made the trip a failure? Can you beat it? You see, when they left the North river the water was smooth and the suction of the pontoons held the ship to the water. Bill rocked the ship as much as he could. The sextant was on a little shelf. It toppled over and broke. That little spot in the ocean, 700 miles out, Bermuda, was missed and so, you see, it was the real cause back of the tragedy. I am enclosing one of the letters Bill carried to Bermuda and which came back to me after the crash.

Editor's note: The letter referred to is a postcard and bears this message in the late Lieut. MacLaren's handwriting:

"We made the first jump successfully—now for the Azores—our next stop." But the first jump was not made successfully, poor fellow.

Hollywood Stuff!

Basil Woon, the English author, is back in town, with some rare tales of his two years' experience as an author on the picture lots. One that I like particularly is the instance when he was assigned to turn out a flicker in which Fifi Dorsay was to be a dainty lingerie model and El Brendel a not so dainty janitor. Woon was instructed to make arrangements, somehow, for a scene with lions because the director was particularly keen on directing lions, having put a group of toothless monarchs of the jungle (isn't that what they call them?) through their paces in an early Chaplin film. So Woon struggled over the idea for months and then found a solution. He convinced the producers that they ought to turn out a football picture—which they did.

Floored!

I can think of nothing of less importance than having a floorside table at any of the local night clubs, but apparently I'm alone in this retiring complex of mine, for any headwaiter will tell you that his chief trouble with patrons is an inability to furnish them a table along the floor. Our Broadwaywardites—and our Park Avenue gentry, too, for that matter—consider it a mark of social inferiority to be seated anywhere except along the battle line. Wherefore you can understand the elation of a certain local gentleman who bears the surname of Gould, although not a member of the famous family, when upon calling up the headwaiter of a certain night club and informing him haughtily that he was Mr. Gould of Park Avenue and would like to visit the club that night with a party of four—you can understand, I repeat, his elation when the headwaiter told him, "Why, yes. Certainly, Mr. Gould. A table on the floor for four? Very good, Mr. Gould, it'll be reserved for you." Several hours later Mr. and Mrs. Gould and their guests arrived at the rendezvous and Mr. Gould handed in his card and was immediately ushered to the best table in the place. It would have been a triumphant evening for him except for one thing. In all that swanky little room there were only two other couples all evening!

Brawlywood Handbook!

After a brief vacation the dictionary of a Hollywood producer returns to us with the following: From Francis Trask, Plymouth Mass.—Prism: where crooks are kept; Plenipotentiary: see "Prism"; Goiter: steel skeleton for a skyscraper; Tidal: the name of a book; Metal: butting in on someone else's business; Scallop: an Indian haircut; From Ernie Parker—Catapult: a sort o' worm; Ominous: 5th avenue transportation; Pomp: you get water from it; Arrange: a fruit with yellow skin; from Smith Ballew—Pepper: what you paid three cents for just to read this column, maybe: Scandal: a kind of shoe with low heels and lots of open work: Band: you should do that every so often for exercise; Petting: what tailors put at the top of the armhole of your coat to give you broad shoulders.

Jobs for Idle as Building Wreckers

To improve the appearance of the city, provide work for unemployed and obtaining firewood for distribution among needy families, Mayor Patrick J. Duane, of Waltham is planning the demolition of several dilapidated and unused buildings in various parts of the city, including the Bleachery and Riverview stations of the B. & M. Railroad.

FLYNN'S FASHION SALON

WHERE QUEEN FASHION REIGNS

The fashion salon, which was recently opened on the fourth floor of the Peter L. Flynn store, has been tastefully furnished to provide a quiet, harmonious background for the afternoon and evening frocks which are on display there. Its entrance hall is done in pastel blue shades, with a touch of black, and the walls of pale blue are ornamented with fine tapestries.

Opening to the left of the entrance hall is the room in which formal afternoon and evening frocks may be seen. This is a restful spot for the customer, with its cream-colored walls, gold brocaded curtains and harmonizing brown rug.

The other room, to the right of the hall, is devoted to afternoon sports dresses and the accessories that go with them. This, too, has a few well-chosen pieces of furniture which stand out against their background of pale green, pale blue and gray walls. The room commands a good view of the Common, opposite the store.

Evil Days Are Ahead for Dry Congressmen

In the State of Massachusetts, Frederick W. Dallinger, a veteran of sixteen years of service; Robert Luce, now serving his sixth term, and Charles L. Underhill, who is also completing his twelfth year at the National Capitol, will be confronted by active contests, with defeat for re-election in the offing.

Either Mr. Dallinger or Mr. Luce must go from the National House, anyway, the recent gerrymander of Massachusetts having combined their districts. But, whichever of the pair decides to make the contest, and Mr. Underhill along with him will be confronted by a contest from which they can hardly hope to emerge successfully.

All three of the Congressmen mentioned made the irretrievable mistake of casting their vote against the resubmission of the prohibition question when the vote on a popular referendum was taken in the House of Representatives last March.

All three, in addition to the burden of their allegiance to the waning cause of prohibition, are carrying a superadded resentment caused by their refusal to permit THE PEOPLE EVEN TO SPEAK on this question of such vital interest and importance.

The dry Congressmen who had the temerity to think they would will answer for their folly at the polls.

"The U. S. Is All Right"

Says a Wise Englishman

In refreshing contrast to most foreign utterances about this country, Lord Rothermere, great British publisher, announces in a full page editorial in his London Daily Mail that "The United States is all right."

Lord Rothermere thinks a recovery is nearer at hand than anybody suspects, and that the spirit which in less than a hundred years raised us from a small and impoverished agricultural community to the greatest industrial nation of the world will soon be evident again. Moreover, he does not believe there is any chance of our going off the gold standard.

This is a different tune from the funeral marches we have been hearing so long at home. And, right or not, it must be admitted that an outsider often has a clearer idea of the facts than one who is living in the midst of them. Nobody here could believe there was a slump ahead during the boom days of 1928 and 1929, though many of our English friends took a gloomy satisfaction in warning us of the wrath to come. Not many Americans are predicting the end of the slump now, either.

'L' Balances Budget

With the new wage scale accepted by the men and operating economies already in effect, the public trustees assure us the Elevated will be able to get along next year without dipping into the city and town treasuries.

So far, so good.

Real estate is so heavily burdened that a further levy upon it ought to be avoided if humanly possible, even if the levy were necessary to maintain a system of transportation vitally necessary to real estate in the great Metropolitan District of Boston.

The men and the public trustees got along with their negotiations in a commendable spirit of amity.

If public operation of the Elevated has done no more than eliminate the periodical ugly disputes between the private operators and the employes, it still would have justified itself. The men have been treated well as a whole by the public since we have had public operation of the Elevated and that is the reason why the men, as a whole, have rendered to the public the most efficient and courteous service which Greater Boston has enjoyed in a generation.

Time Proves Their Worth

A meeting of clergymen at St. Petersburg, Fla., denounced the autos, movies and radios as subtle influences undermining the Christian home.

That's nothing. Right here in New England, the railroad was condemned on the ground that God did not want any human being to travel faster than a horse, which is nine miles an hour.

Yet, many progressive clergymen now illustrate their sermons with movie films of historical character, and others reach audiences over the air which a thousand churches could not accommodate.

In our own White Mountains, with its far-flung parishes, pastors reach four and five mission churches on a single Sunday in their autos, bringing religious training to pastoral folk they would not see once a month if they had to rely upon a horse at nine miles an hour.

Fountain of Youth Found

The Fountain of Youth, in seeking which Ponce de Leon lost his life, has been discovered at last, and by that prosaic individual the census taker. It is the island of St. Vincent, in the West Indies.

This little spot on the map has only 47,961 residents, but out of that number four are more than 100 years old, 21 have just reached that age, 32 are 95 or older, and 155 boys and girls have passed 90.

Maybe it's due to the climate. Robinson Crusoe spent twenty-five years on Tobago, not far from St. Vincent, and was healthier there than at any other time in his long life. Or maybe it's the West Indian rum in which the inhabitants indulge now and then, strictly for medicinal purposes. Significant or not, it is a fact that not one of the St. Vincent centenarians is a teetotaler.

New York Day by Day

Marathon Dancing

NEW YORK, May 19—I have had several close-ups recently of that supine and national idiocy known as Marathon Dancing. The dancers are fenced in on a smooth floor like so many side-show exhibits with a back-ground of seats thrown up circus fashion. Some customers remain all night.

Out of 60 contesting couples at one dance in its 47th day, nine pairs were carrying on and one determined Italian, bald and grim, was soloing it, having lost his partner. They are supposed to dance 45 minutes and rest 15 and are fed every three hours on a special diet. Nearly all gain weight, some 10 pounds.

At rest intervals, they try to snatch 40 winks, receive rub downs and are aroused by a siren. Mostly those standing the gaff are professionals, who have been in major events all over the country. Their dress is grotesque—pajamas, crazily patched overalls, shorts and sweaters bearing ads.

A middle-aged mother and her cake-eating son were among those striving for the $1000 prize. There was a honeymoon couple, married the day of the start, a brother and sister and what the ballyhooer calls "sweetheart couples." A duo of disgustingly unfunny comics heckle the dancers and otherwise make themselves a nuisance.

The greatest difficulty is after the rest periods. They come back to the floor in a desperate fight to remain awake. The one widest awake holds up the partner. After a time one of them is able to sleep soundly while the other acts as a support for a drag around the floor.

The soloist had reached the point of napping on his feet and waking himself by the sensation of falling. At intervals a master of ceremony introduces participants and calls upon them for "stunt"—clogging, singing, etc. The audience is supposed to shower change.

The ace of tony apartment houses is the cream-colored structure, flush on the East River with a bleak vista of Welfare Island's prison yard, known as No. 1 Sutton Place. It is 100 per cent co-operative and the selective process for tenants is strictest in town. The building was sponsored by John D. Rockefeller's son-in-law, David Milton. Yachts nose up to tenants' back door.

Until two years ago, major circuses exploited "a cigarette fiend" in side shows. He was usually cadaverous, hollow-eyed, pasty and dressed in black tights. For many years the horrible example was not exhibited in New York on account of the snickers. This amusement eventually spread to the outland and the "cigarette fiend" was withdrawn.

Oddly enough, New York, save on the Bowery and in psychopathic wards, rarely reveals a "periodical drinker." In small towns where I have lived were always one or two men of respectability on hi-lonesomes. They drank themselves into deliriums bordering on the horrors for weeks at a stretch and as suddenly returned to complete sobriety, a little pale, enormously ashamed.

I am able to recall my first intoxicating drink—a glass of beer. The emptied glass was placed back on the mahogany with a lip smack and sleeve wipe as my father popped glowering through the swing doors. The ominous quiet before the cyclone. And I was yanked by the collar down the main street, walking Spanish. That evening I was given $20, along with the suggestion travel broadened the mind. And Plattsburg, Missouri's loss was Dayton, Ohio's, gain.

Listen, World!

What Is Love?

"WHAT DO YOU MEAN by saying that 'love is many answers'?" he writes.

I mean that love isn't a unique experience that suddenly falls upon us, out of the blue.

Elsie Robinson

Love does not happen outside us. It happens inside us.

We do not find love. We make it out of our own hungers and dreams.

Love is the answer to those hungers; the realization of those dreams.

Love is many answers, for we have many hungers which need answering.

LOVE IS THE ANSWER TO OUR NEED OF BEAUTY.

(Here, at last, is that gentle, shining thing of which we have dreamed, which we had despaired of finding. Here is that sweet wonder that will compensate for all the ugliness of life!)

LOVE IS THE ANSWER TO LONELINESS.

(Here, we think, is someone who will fill the emptiness.)

LOVE IS THE ANSWER TO FEAR.

(Here, in this tender understanding, we can hide from doubt, and criticism, and disillusion; can hide from the conflict within ourselves as well as in the world.

LOVE IS THE ANSWER TO CONCEIT.

(Here, at last, is the chance to be as important as we want to be; to create a world for ourselves; to rule, undisputed in that world of our own making.

Yes, love is many answers to many needs. Noble needs. Contemptible needs.

That is why. Our needs are never perfect.

Love is as high as we are—and as low. It is as strong—and as weak.

Love is not the measure of another soul. Its success does not depend on the quality of that other spirit.

Love is the measure of our own souls. Its success depends on the quality of our own spirits.

Love is that dream which we create in the hidden places of the heart, THEN SUDDENLY, ECSTATICALLY, TRANSFER TO ANOTHER HUMAN CHARACTER—where maybe it fits, and maybe it doesn't!

But whether it fits or whether it doesn't, love is what we make it.

No love is a failure, if you give to it the noblest thing in you. Even though the object of your love should fail you, love itself will not fail you if you have built it nobly.

And no love is a success if it is built on your weakness, your cheapness, your cowardice. Even though it flatters ad delights you, comforts and coddles you, LOVE IS A FAILURE IF IT LETS YOU FAIL YOURSELF.

Just Folks

The Gunman

For a little bit of silver he had shot a stranger down,
And had been a hunted creature in the back streets of the town.
For his capture gold was offered, and he shivered as he read:
"Wanted here for theft and murder—bring him in alive or dead!"

He was cunning, he was clever, as the days went rushing by.
It was safe, he thought, to venture out beneath the open sky.
He had fooled the law completely; no policeman on his beat
Would remember he was wanted as he passed him on the street.

Man can cheat the code established if he only has the brains.
Once he shot a man for silver. Now the world will never know
He was hunted—lost—forgotten! That's the way such cases go.

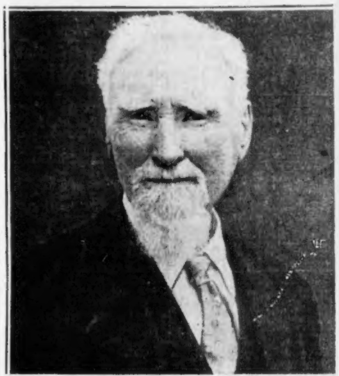
Two Good Americans, Both "Immigrants"

Our Laws Today Would Keep Them Both Out



ROBERT DOLLAR, GREATEST AMERICAN SHIPPING MAN, BORN IN SCOTLAND

Robert Dollar is dead. He built up American shipping on the Pacific Ocean, and all over the world. He made a great success with shipping, as he had done with lumbering, although he did not go into the shipping business until he was sixty years of age. He died in his 88th year

We print also the face of another ship builder, who died Monday. Mr. Todd was the son of an immigrant from Ireland.

Both of these men contributed in the best possible way to the building up of the United States.

They made their own way, this Irish immigrant and his son, nobody helping. And the late Captain Dollar built up his own career as he built up his industries, soundly and successfully, from the small beginnings of a Scottish-born immigrant.

WILLIAM H. TODD, ANOTHER SHIP BUILDER, DESCENDED FROM AN IRISH IMMIGRANT

Mr. Todd worked as mechanic and a foreman, built his own shipping yards, turned out many ships. He and Captain Dollar gave work at good wages to thousands of mechanics, paid out millions upon millions in wages.

All of their lives they worked hard. They never retired to enjoy what they made. And what they made for themselves was very small compared to what they paid to American labor.

Such men as this, one of them born in Scotland, the other the son of an Irish immigrant, are the men that have made this country.

Our stupid immigration law is now keeping such men out of the United States, and that law ought to be changed.

The Beer Tax

Known to few is the fact that the United States still has a law on the statute books authorizing it to collect a tax of $6 on every barrel of beer made in this country.

This provision is part of the 1918 revenue law, which has never been repealed.

It is a dead letter, of course, since all the beer made here is illegal and hence untaxable.

Nevertheless, it is the law, and a simple declaration by Congress that 4 per cent beer was non-intoxicating would put it into effect at once.

No red tape, no debate, no further legislation would be needed. The tax-gathering machinery could be set up inside of 30 days. The yield in revenue would be at least $180,000,000 the first year and half a billion a year or so later. Hundreds of thousands of new jobs would also be created, not only in the breweries, but in many other industries.
